Background: The Motor Vehicle Title provides that it is unlawful for any person to willfully fail or refuse to comply with a lawful order of an authorized flagman, or a police officer or fire fighter invested with authority to direct, control, or regulate traffic. It is also unlawful for a motor vehicle operator to refuse, when requested by a police officer, to give his or her name and address, certificated registration, insurance card, or driver's license, or to refuse or fail to stop. No penalty is provided for these offenses.

All unlawful acts or failures to act relating to traffic under the Motor Vehicle Title are designated traffic infractions, and may not be classified as criminal offenses unless specifically authorized. The failure to obey a police officer, flagman, or fire fighter, and the refusal to give information or cooperate with a police officer may be classified as criminal offenses.
