Background:

Congress enacted the Ticket to Work and Work Incentives Improvement Act in November 1999. The legislation authorizes individuals with disabilities to use a ticket to work and self-sufficiency to obtain employment services, vocational rehabilitation services, or other support services from an employment network of the individual's choice. The legislation also gives the state greater flexibility in removing barriers to employment for individuals with disabilities. States are given the option to modify Medicaid income and resource limits for individuals with disabilities who are earning an income. States may also allow working individuals with disabilities to buy into Medicaid even though they are no longer eligible for federal disability benefits.

Summary of Bill:

The Department of Social and Health Services will continue Medicaid coverage for individuals with disabilities who go to work. The department will establish earned income disregards, cost sharing, and a schedule of premiums that eliminate disincentives to work. The department will also participate in the development of a ticket to work program that allows individuals with disabilities to choose their provider of vocational rehabilitation services, employment services, and other support services.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Effective Date of Second Substitute Bill: The bill takes effect on October 1, 2000. However, the bill is null and void unless funded in the omnibus appropriations act.

Testimony For: (Health Care) This legislation will allow individuals with disabilities to go to work. Individuals with disabilities will be able to become more independent.

(Appropriations) This bill 2364 presents an opportunity to move ahead on federal legislation. Health care and coverage prevent many disabled individuals from gaining employment. Individuals with developmental disabilities want to work. The major roadblock to working is retention of Medicaid coverage. There is a concern that the fiscal note does not reflect the impact of allowing these individuals to work and contribute to the economy, support their families, and contribute to the cost of their care. People with disabilities are actively engaged in the struggle to pay taxes. It is difficult to find employment for these individuals due to restrictions on the number of hours they may work so as to maintain Medicaid coverage. This bill is a great boon to the economy and the workforce.
