Background:

The Office of Public Defense (OPD), which was created in 1996 and scheduled to sunset in 2009, administers state-funded indigent defense services for criminal appeals.

The director of the OPD is appointed by the state Supreme Court. The Director is supervised by an 11-member advisory committee consisting of judicial representatives, legislators, attorneys, and lay people. The chair and two other members are appointed by the Supreme Court, one member is appointed by the Court of Appeals, two nonattorney members are appointed by the Governor, four members are appointed by the Legislature, and one member is appointed by the Washington State Bar Association.

During an appointee's term on the committee, the appointee may not provide indigent defense services except on a pro bono basis, be an appellate judge or appellate court employee, or be a prosecutor or prosecutor employee.

For various reasons, temporary judges are sometimes used to hear cases in the Court of Appeals. The chief justice of the Supreme Court may appoint any regularly elected superior court judge or any retired superior, appellate, or Supreme Court judge to serve as a pro temp judge on the Court of Appeals.

Summary of Bill:

An appointee of the OPD advisory committee may serve as a pro tem appellate court judge.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.
