Background:

Interlocal Cooperation Act

The Interlocal Cooperation Act allows public agencies to enter into agreements with one another for joint or cooperative action. Any power or authority held by a public agency may be exercised jointly with one or more other public agencies having the same power or authority. A "public agency" includes any agency, political subdivision, or unit of local government. The term specifically includes municipal corporations, special purpose districts, local service districts, state agencies, federal agencies, recognized Indian tribes, and other states' political subdivisions.

Public agencies that enter into joint agreements may create a separate legal entity, such as a nonprofit corporation or a partnership, to carry out the purposes of agreement. In a 2008 act relating to the procurement of renewable resources, the Legislature amended the Interlocal

Cooperation Act to allow public agencies to form limited liability companies to carry out their joint agreements.

Business Entity Registration

Statutes governing the formation and operation of business entities, including nonprofit corporations, partnerships, and limited liability companies, require those entities to designate and maintain a registered agent. The registered agent is an agent of the entity for the purposes of receiving service of process or other notices on behalf of the entity.

A registered agent may be an individual resident of Washington, a domestic corporation or nonprofit corporation, or a foreign corporation or nonprofit corporation authorized to do business in Washington. The statutes governing general partnerships and limited liability companies also allow limited liability companies to serve as a registered agent.
