Background: Employers, students, parents and others have expressed concern that high school curriculum does not adequately prepare students for obtaining jobs when students graduate. This is especially a problem for students who do not continue their education. In addition, it is felt that efforts are needed to make high school curriculum much more relevant to the student, thus making it more interesting.

Summary of Bill: The Superintendent of Public Instruction (SPI) shall establish an academic and vocational integration development program grant program. The projects shall combine academic and vocational education into a single instructional system that is responsive to the educational needs of all students in secondary schools.

Goals of the projects shall include:

- (1) Integration of vocational and academic instructional curriculum;
- (2) Emphasis on increased vocational, personal, and academic guidance and counseling; and
- (3) Active participation of educators in the project, employers, private and public community service providers, parents, and community members.

The SPI shall select projects for grant awards, and monitor and evaluate the projects. SPI also shall appoint a task force to advise the department throughout the application, selection, monitoring, and evaluation process.

Initial applications shall be submitted to SPI not later than June 1, 1992. Subject to available funding, additional applications may be submitted by November 1 of subsequent years. Application requirements are specified.

The initial academic and vocational integration development projects shall commence with the 1992-93 school year, and may be conducted for up to six years.

Specified waivers of state laws and regulations may be granted.

Fiscal Note: Requested January 22, 1992.

Appropriation: Removed.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: We can no longer segregate academic and vocational subjects. We must help students see the connection between education and their personal lives by combining academic and career education. Evidence from Woodland High School in California shows that combining academic and vocational curriculum results in higher test scores, lower drop-out rates, and increased post-secondary enrollment in colleges/universities and technical programs.

Testimony Against: None.
