House Committee on Transportation Senate Committee on Transportation

Background: An additional five-cent federal gas and diesel tax went into effect in December 1990. Two and one-half cents of the tax increase is dedicated to the General Fund for deficit reduction purposes, and 2.5 cents is earmarked for the Highway Trust Fund. (0.5 of the 2.5 cents is dedicated to the Mass Transit Account.) None of the Highway Trust Fund money may be spent. The tax is scheduled to expire in 1995.

Summary: This House Joint Memorial requests the President of the United States, President of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and members of Congress to (a) make the Highway Trust Fund portion of the gas/diesel tax available for immediate expenditure; or (b) if the federal government will not release the Highway Trust Fund portion, then provide states with the authority to spend their own resources now with the federal commitment to pay back later, through future obligation authority.

The memorial also requests that the entire five-cent gas/diesel tax be extended indefinitely with all proceeds earmarked for the Highway Trust Fund. If extended, the proceeds would be dedicated solely to highway purposes unless individual states/local governments decide to use some portion for transit purposes.

Congress is further requested to appropriate balances in the Highway and Transit Accounts to the states over the next five years.
