Background: In 1988, the Legislature enacted a program authorizing the Department of Labor and Industries to pay industrial insurance benefits to workers who may have claims under the federal maritime laws because of asbestos-related disease if: (1) there are objective clinical findings to substantiate a claim for asbestos-related occupational disease; and, (2) the worker's employment history shows injurious exposure to asbestos while working in employment covered under state law. The department makes the determination of insurer liability and pays benefits until the liable insurer begins payments or benefits are otherwise properly terminated. Benefits are paid from the medical aid fund with the state fund and the self-insured employers each paying a pro rata share. Employees of the self-insurers pay one-half of the share charged to self-insurers.

If the department determines that the liable insurer is the state fund or a self-insured employer, the medical aid fund is immediately reimbursed for costs and benefits paid to the claimant. If the department determines that benefits are owed to the claimant by a federal program or by an insurer under the federal maritime laws, the department is authorized to pursue the federal insurer on behalf of the claimant to recover the benefits due and, on its own behalf, to recover costs and benefits paid.

The provisions authorizing benefits do not apply if the worker or beneficiary refuses to assist the department in making a coverage determination. If the worker or beneficiary fails to provide relevant information or if the worker refuses to submit to medical examination or fails to cooperate with an examination, the department must reject the claim application.

The program terminates July 1, 1993.

Summary of Bill: The July 1, 1993, expiration date for the asbestos-related disease program is deleted.

The authority of the Department of Labor and Industries to reject an application for benefits under the program is amended to add an additional reason for rejection. The department must reject an application if the worker does not cooperate with the department in pursuing benefits from the federal program insurer.

The attorney general is authorized to appoint special assistant attorneys general to prosecute asbestos-related claims against federal program insurers who the department determines are liable for benefits. The attorney general will specify procedures to be used by private attorneys who wish to be listed as available for appointment. Attorney fees for these prosecutions will be paid in conformity with applicable federal and state law. Any legal costs remaining as an obligation of the department will be paid from the medical aid fund.

The bill applies to all claims without regard to the date of injury or of filing the claim.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Effective Date: The bill contains an emergency clause and takes effect on July 1, 1993.

Testimony For: (Commerce & Labor) The asbestos-related disease program has proven to be a success and should be continued. The bill would give the department additional tools to recover benefit costs from federal insurers and to get information when third party issues are involved. However, it should be amended to remove a possible conflict with federal law concerning the payment of litigation costs. (This testimony was presented in response to the Department of Labor and Industries' report on the asbestos-related disease program.)

(Appropriations) The program provides benefits to injured workers and beneficiaries for asbestos-related diseases. The symptoms may not be identified for years after the employees initial asbestos exposure making it difficult to resolve liability issues. The litigation for liability determination can be a long process and the benefits provided during this period are very important to the recipients. The Asbestos-Related Disease Program has proven to be a success and should be continued.
