Background: A large group of legislators, public assistance recipients, state agency staff, human service advocates, and academics conducted an extensive review of our state's public assistance program. The motivation for this review is the scheduled termination of the Family Independence Program (FIP) on June 30, 1993 and the desire to incorporate the positive aspects of the FIP demonstration project into the statewide Job Opportunities and Basic Skill Program (JOBS). Seven community forums were held around the state in June 1992 to receive input directly from recipients of public assistance and to develop a series of recommendations for a post FIP welfare employment and training program. Forums were held in Yakima, Everett, Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, Vancouver, and Port Angeles. One hundred ten citizens testified on problems with the current welfare system which promote dependence and act as barriers to economic self-sufficiency.

Testimony at the forums held around the state, indicated that the majority of public assistance recipients who testified would rather be working. The problem experienced by many recipients is that it is difficult for parents on Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) to get, and keep a job if the barriers to employment are not addressed. The FIP and JOBS programs offer recipients the education, training, and support services to gain independence, but implementation problems and resource restrictions pose problems for recipients in utilizing everything these programs are capable of providing.

Summary of Bill: Recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children will be allowed to retain more earned income before their welfare grant is reduced. The Department of Social and Health Services will design a statewide program for recipients of aid to families with dependent children which provides varying intensities of education, work, and work experience for recipients. The department will prepare a pilot project of electronic benefit transfer for food stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, and the Women, Infants, Children programs. The department will seek necessary federal approval to eliminate the 100 hour rule for recipients of the Aid to Families with Dependent Children-Employable Program. The department will determine the most appropriate living situation for teenage recipients of aid to families with dependent children. The department is authorized to provide grants to community action agencies and other nonprofit organizations to assist recipients of aid to families with dependent children. The department will exclude child support and income in determining food stamp eligibility. Aid to Families with Dependent Children benefits for certain 18 to 20 year old students are allowed. Some target group compliance with the JOBS program is made voluntary.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: (Human Services): Removing work disincentives and providing appropriate education, training, work experience, and support services will help people leave public assistance and become tax paying citizens.

(Appropriations): The policies in the bill are going in the right direction. Assistance is needed in order for poor people to become self-sufficient. The use of pilot programs should be reviewed. If the program is appropriate, it should be statewide.
