Background: Over 65 different types of special districts may be created in this state. Separate statutes exist for most of these different special districts. Many special districts are governed by a governing body composed of elected officials, while the members of some governing bodies consist of appointed officials. All special district elected officials are elected at nonpartisan elections.

Seven different types of cities and towns may be created in this state, each governed by separate statutes. Cities and towns are governed by elected councils or commissions. Some cities and towns have mayors with executive authorities who are not part of the council. Other cities or towns have a council or commission member who is nominally referred to as a mayor, but the mayor has no executive authority. The voters of a city or town are the voters who reside in the city or town. All city and town elected officials are elected at nonpartisan elections.

General election law exists for elections in special districts where property ownership is not a qualification of voting and for elections in cities and towns. However, certain provisions of city, town, or special district laws provide for election matters differing from general election law. It is most common for a city, town, or special district to conform with general election laws instead of the specific laws for the city, town, or special district that conflict with the general election law. However, in some instances, the specific election laws for a city, town, or special district are followed instead of general election law.

Summary of Substitute Bill: Many of the specific provisions of law relating to the election procedures for cities, towns, and special districts where the franchise is not limited to property owners, are altered to conform with the practices of general election law and are made uniform.

1. Filling Vacancies.

A common procedure is established to fill vacancies on the governing bodies of cities and towns, as well as the elected governing bodies of special districts where the franchise is not limited to property owners.

The remaining members of the governing body appoint someone to fill the vacancy. If the appointment is not made within 90 days of the vacancy, the authority to make the appointment reverts to the county legislative authority of the county in which all or the largest geographic portion of the local government is located. If the county legislative authority fails to make the appointment within 180 days of the vacancy, the county or remaining members of the local governmental governing body may request the governor to make the appointment.

Where less than two members of the governing body remain in office, the county legislative authority of the county in which all or the largest geographic portion of the government is located appoints either one or two persons to bring the governing body up to two persons.

2. Occurrence of a vacancy.

General provisions of law detailing when a vacancy occurs in an elected office are cited in the specific laws for cities, towns, and special districts where the franchise is not limited to property owners.

3. Wards or commissioner districts.

The use of wards, council districts, or commissioner districts is standardized for nonpartisan local governmental governing bodies, other than school districts, that are permitted to use wards, council districts, or commissioner districts.

Wards, council districts, or commissioner districts would be used for: (1) Residency purposes where a candidate for the position would have to reside in the ward or district; and (2) nomination purposes where only voters residing in a ward or district vote at a primary election to nominate candidates for the position.

Wards, council districts, or commissioner districts are not to be used at the general election and the voters throughout the entire local government would vote on an at-large basis to elect each member of the governing body at the general election. However, a city may continue using wards to limit voters at general elections who elect councilmembers if these restrictions existed prior to January 1, 1993.

4. Filing requirements.

The fee to file for an office that has a fixed annual salary of $1,000 or less is raised from $10 to $20.

The requirement is deleted that the filing fees for a city or town elected office are transferred by the county auditor to the city or town.

The requirements are eliminated that filings for the office of PUD commissioner, airport district commissioner, the initial sewer district commissioners, and the initial water district commissioners be accompanied by a petition signed by a certain number of district voters.

5. Other provisions.

Statutes relating to ferry districts are repealed.

Substitute Bill Compared to Original Bill: Language was added permitting cities to continue using wards at general elections to restrict voters who may vote for candidates for different council positions. Statutes are repealed relating to contested elections in cities that no longer are followed. A drafting error was corrected to maintain fire commissioner terms of office at six years.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date of Substitute Bill: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: This is a technical bill conforming the election laws of cities and special districts with general election law and practice. The uniform vacancy procedure ensures vacancies will be filled.

Testimony Against: None.

Witnesses: (Pro): Stan Finkelstein, Association of Washington Cities.
