Background: An inactive housing authority exists in every county, city and town, which can be activated if the county, city or town governing body adopts a resolution declaring the need for the housing authority and making certain findings.

Housing authorities construct, acquire and operate housing projects for low income persons and administer contracts for housing assistance payments to low income persons under federal laws. Housing authorities may issue revenue bonds to finance their projects but may not issue general obligation bonds or impose taxes.

The governing body of a housing authority is a five-member board of commissioners appointed by the mayor of the city or town, or county legislative authority, to staggered five-year terms of office. A housing authority commissioner may not be an officer or employee of the county, city or town that activated the housing authority.

Summary of Bill: Restrictions on the designation of housing authority commissioners are altered. One commissioner in a housing authority of a county with a population of 175,000 or less, as of the 1990 federal census, is allowed to be an employee of a separately elected official of the county, other than the governing body.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: We need people with knowledge of low income and affordable housing, but the way the law is currently written prohibits many individuals from being considered for the position. This grants greater flexibility to smaller counties.

Testimony Against: None.

Witnesses: Chris Lowell, Housing Authority of Thurston County; and Norman McLoughlin, Association of Washington Housing Authorities.
