Signed by 10 members: Representatives Leonard, Chair; Thibaudeau, Vice Chair; Cooke, Ranking Minority Member; Talcott, Assistant Ranking Minority Member; Brown; Caver; Karahalios; Lisk; Padden and Patterson.

Background: When a child runs away from home, law enforcement officers are required by statute to pick up the child and either return the child home, take the child to a crisis residential center, or take the child to the home of a responsible adult. Law enforcement officers have a difficult time returning children home when they are illegally harbored by adults.

Summary of Substitute Bill: Law enforcement officers will pick up runaways and either return them to their parent or guardian, take them to a crisis residential center or take them to a responsible adult after parental notification.

Substitute Bill Compared to Original Bill: Responsible adults will be able to receive runaways after parent notification. Law enforcement officers will remove a child from an adult illegally harboring the child and return the child home. The crime of illegally harboring a child is increased from a misdemeanor to a gross misdemeanor. The department will maintain a toll free hotline to assist parents of runaways. The criminal justice training commission will ensure law enforcement agencies will accurately describe juvenile runaway statutes.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date of Substitute Bill: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: Law enforcement officers need clearer direction on when to pick up runaways and where to take them. Penalties for illegally harboring a minor are increased.

Testimony Against: Law enforcement officers should not return runaways home if the runaway does not want to return home.
