Background: The Southwest Washington Fair (Fair) is categorized as a county and district fair but considered an agricultural fair for funding allocation purposes. The commission which had managed the Fair was abolished by statute in 1973. Administration and control of all commission obligations were transferred to the Lewis County Board of Commissioners (Board), and title to all Fair property was vested in the board.

The board is authorized to appoint a citizens' commission to advise and assist in carrying out the Fair. The board chair is required to serve as the chair of the advisory committee.

The board is also authorized to acquire and improve real property for Fair purposes. Any surplus property may be sold or exchanged according to specified procedures.

Local governments may by ordinance or resolution create public corporations, commissions and authorities to perform specified functions and may transfer funds, property or services to such entities.

Summary of Bill: Provisions regarding management and operation of the Fair are revised.

As an alternative to appointing an advisory committee, the board may appoint a designee to fulfill all of the board's obligations with respect to the Fair. The chair of the board may but is not required to serve as the chair of any advisory committee that is appointed.

Fair property is under the jurisdiction of Lewis County and under the management and control of the board or its designee. Any exchange of surplus Fair property must be conducted according to Lewis County property management regulations.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: (Government Administration) This bill would allow changes to make the Fair a public development authority and would help to ensure that the Fair remains successful. Allowing Lewis County to appoint a designee to operate the Fair provides greater flexibility. Employees who leave Lewis County to join the public development authority should be able to have their retirement plans go with them.

(Appropriations) The authority and ownership of fairs should be with the county commissioners instead of the board.

Testimony Against: (Government Administration) None.

(Appropriations) None.

Testified: (Government Administration) Representative DeBolt and Alexander, sponsors; Rose Bowman and Jeff Fancher, Lewis County; and Heather Hanson, Washington State Fairs Association.

(Appropriations) Representative Gary Alexander.
