Staff: Dave Johnson (786-7154).

Background: Any person charged with a non-felony offense in district court may petition for what's called a "deferred prosecution." DUI is the offense for which a deferred prosecution is most often sought. In order to qualify for a deferred prosecution, a person must allege that the charged criminal conduct resulted from the person's alcoholism or drug addiction, that the conduct is likely to recur if the alcoholism or addiction is not treated, and that the alcoholism or addiction is in fact amenable to treatment. Among other things, the applicant must also acknowledge in writing that he or she waives the right to testify, to call witnesses, to have a speedy trial, or to have a jury. The applicant must also stipulate to the admissibility of the evidence contained in the police report.

If a person is granted a deferred prosecution and successfully completes a court-ordered, two-year treatment program, the court will dismiss the charges. Conviction for another offense during the two-year program results in judgment being entered on the deferred charge.

A person charged with an offense under the motor vehicle code is not eligible for a deferred prosecution more than once in a five-year period.

Summary of Bill: No person charged with a violation of the motor vehicle code is eligible for a deferred prosecution program more than once. Commission (rather than conviction) of another offense during the two-year program results in entry of judgment on the deferred charge. The court may not dismiss the deferred charge until three years after proof of completion of the two-year treatment program.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Requested on February 8, 1998.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect on January 1, 1999, however, the bill is null and void unless funded in the budget.

Testimony For: (Law & Justice) One deferred prosecution is enough. Multiple offenders abuse the system.
