HOUSE COMMITTEE ON LAW & JUSTICE

Staff: Bill Perry (786-7123).

Background: For various reasons, the supreme court or the court of appeals may need judges on a temporary basis. Constitutional and statutory authority exists for the appointment of judges pro tem.–

In the case of the supreme court, a judge pro tem may be appointed at the direction of a majority of the supreme court. The pool from which a supreme court judge pro tem may be drawn consists of sitting elected judges of the court of appeals and all retired judges of courts of record in this state. There is no statutory limit on the length or number of appointments that may be made.

In the case of the court of appeals, a judge pro tem may be appointed by the chief justice of the supreme court. The pool from which a court of appeals judge pro tem may be drawn consists of sitting elected judges of the superior court and all retired judges of courts of record in this state. No court of appeals judge pro tem may serve for more than 90 days in any one year.

Sitting judges who serve as judges pro tem in the court of appeals or the supreme court continue to receive their regular salaries plus reimbursement for subsistence, lodging, and travel. Retired judges who serve as judges pro tem also continue to receive their retirement pay plus reimbursement for subsistence, lodging, and travel. In addition, a retired judge serving as a pro tem receives the difference between his or her retirement pay and the pay received by an active elected judge in the same position as the last judicial position held by the pro tem before retirement.

A separate judicial retirement system– exists for judges first appointed or elected to a court of record between 1971 and 1988. For purposes of that system a judge– does not include persons serving as pro tems. Generally, since 1988 elected and appointed judges of courts of record have been eligible for membership in the state public employees retirement system. The public employees retirement system does not explicitly mention pro tem judges.

Summary of Bill: Authorization is given for the appointment of certain judges as supreme court and court of appeals judges pro tem. The appointments are to be made when necessary for the prompt and orderly administration of justice.

A judge of the supreme court whose term expires with cases pending may be appointed by the chief justice as a supreme court judge pro tem for up to 60 days. A judge of the court of appeals whose term expires under the same conditions may, upon the recommendation of the presiding judge of the court of appeals, be appointed by the chief justice as a court of appeals judge pro tem, also for up to 60 days. A judge appointed as a pro tem under these provisions will continue to draw the same salary he or she was earning at the time of the expiration of his or her term.

The definition of a judge— for purposes of the judicial retirement system is amended to explicitly include a judge of a court of record whose term has expired and who has been appointed as a pro tem. The state employees retirement system law is amended to include the pro tem positions held by these same judges.

A technical correction is made to a cross-reference in the public employees retirement system law.

The act is made applicable to judges whose terms expire on or after November 7, 1995.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.
