Background: Senior citizens and persons who are retired from regular employment because of physical disability are eligible for property tax relief on their personal residences.

If the person is at least 60 years old or is retired from regular employment because of physical disability, and the person's disposable household income is $34,000 or less, the person is entitled to defer any property taxes and special benefit assessments imposed on the property. The deferral program generally applies to the residence and one acre of land but is increased to up to five acres of land if zoning requires this larger parcel size.

If the person is at least 62 years old or is retired from regular employment because of physical disability, and the person's disposable household income is $28,000 or less, the person is also entitled to a limit on the value of the residence and a partial property tax exemption. Application can be made in the year the person reaches the age of 61. The valuation limit and exemption apply to the residence and up to one acre of land on which it is situated.

The valuation of the residence is frozen at the assessed value of the residence on the later of January 1, 1995, or January 1 of the year the person first qualified for the program, but the valuation cannot exceed the market value on January 1 of the assessment year.

The partial property tax exemption and the qualifying income limits are summarized in the following table.

$18,001 to $28,000	Exempt	No exemption
$15,001 to $18,000	Exempt	$30,000 or 30% of value exempt ($50,000 maximum)
$15,000 or less	Exempt	$34,000 or 50% of value exempt

Qualification for the program is based on disposable household income. Disposable household income is the disposable income of the person claiming the exemption, the person's spouse, and any other person residing in the residence who has an ownership interest in the residence. Disposable income includes federal adjusted gross income plus the following if not already included: capital gains, deductions for loss, depreciation, pensions and annuities, military pay and benefits, veterans benefits, social security benefits, dividends, and interest income.

Excluded from disposable income are payments for the treatment or care of either spouse in the home or in a nursing home and expenditures for prescription drugs. Also excluded from disposable income are capital gains from the sale of a principal residence if the gains are not subject to federal income tax under the $250,000 exclusion for the sale of a principal residence, but only to the extent the money is reinvested in a new principal residence.

Summary of Bill: A deduction is authorized from disposable household income for health care insurance for either person. The parcel size limit for the exemption program is increased from one acre up to five acres if zoning requires the larger size. In addition, the income levels for eligibility for the exemption program and the exemption amounts are increased according to the following table.
