Background:

The Uniform Disciplinary Act governs the administrative and adjudicative procedures and sanctions for unprofessional conduct relating to the regulated health professions. The disciplining authorities include the Secretary of Health as well as the health professions boards and commissions with regulatory authority.

Sanctions for unprofessional conduct include license revocation, suspension, restriction, remedial education or treatment, monitoring of a practice, censure, probation, fine, license denial, corrective action, and refund of fees.

Surrender of a license is not included as a sanction. However it may result from a stipulated informal disposition of a case, after an investigation and statement of allegations. In such a settlement, there are no findings with regard to the allegation and the matter is not reportable.

Summary of Bill:

The surrender of a practitioner's license constitutes a sanction for unprofessional conduct.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: It is necessary to recognize as a sanction what is commonly used now as an informal remedy. The law should be clarified to permit the surrender of a license as a formal sanction. This sanction, however, must be reportable information in the record.

Testimony Against: None.

Testified: (support) Carl Nelson, Washington State Medical Association.

(concerns) Pat Brown, Department of Health.
