Background:

The Washington State Horse Racing Commission licenses, regulates, and supervises parimutuel horse racing in Washington state. The Horse Racing Commission has five commissioners and four ex officio legislative members.

The commission requires all individuals who participate in racing at a race track to be licensed. Examples of individuals licensed by the commission include jockeys, horse owners, trainers, veterinarians, horse grooms, and exercise riders. The Horse Racing Commission also licenses racing associations.

For purposes of licensing, the commission considers the criminal background of each applicant. An applicant's criminal background may contain two types of data. Conviction data includes all arrests, detentions, or other formal charges and their disposition. In addition, conviction data includes arrests that are pending and less than one year old. Non-conviction data includes arrests, detentions, and formal criminal charges that have not led to convictions and that are not currently pending.

The circumstances under which a criminal justice agency may release non-conviction data include: (1) releasing the data to another criminal justice agency; (2) releasing the data pursuant to a statute, ordinance, executive order, or court rule; (3) releasing the data to an individual or agency pursuant to a contract to provide services related to the administration of criminal justice; and (4) releasing the data to an individual or agency for research, evaluative, or statistical activities.

Summary of Amended Bill:

The Horse Racing Commission is authorized to receive criminal history record information that includes non-conviction data for use in investigations to determine suitability for involvement in horse racing activities. The commission may not disseminate or use non-conviction data for purposes other than that authorized in the bill. The authorization expires June 30, 2003.
