HOUSE COMMITTEE ON CRIMINAL JUSTICE AND CORRECTIONS

Staff: Jean Ann Quinn (786-7310).

Background:

Community Placement for Certain Offenders: Community placement is that period during which an offender is subject to the conditions of community custody and/or post-release supervision. It may consist entirely of community custody, entirely post-release supervision, or a combination of the two. All offenders sentenced to terms involving community placement are under the supervision of the Department of Corrections and must follow the instructions and conditions of the department.

Community custody is that portion of an inmate's sentence of confinement served « in lieu of earned early release time, or imposed by the court for certain offenses « in the community subject to controls placed on the inmate's movement and activities by the Department of Corrections.

Post-release supervision begins upon completion of the term of confinement, and is that portion of community placement which is not community custody.

Earned early release time is awarded for good behavior and good performance. Certain offenders (those convicted of a sex offense, a serious violent offense, second degree assault, vehicular homicide, vehicular assault, assault of a child in the second degree, any crime against a person where the defendant or an accomplice was armed with a deadly weapon, or any felony offense under the Uniform Controlled Substances Act or the Imitation Controlled Substances Act) may become eligible for transfer to community custody status in lieu of earned early release time.

In sentencing for certain offenses, the court is required to impose a one-year term of community placement in addition to the other terms of the sentence. These offenses currently are: a sex offenses or serious violent offense committed after July 1, 1988, but before July 1, 1990; assault in the second degree; assault of a child in the second degree; any crime against a person where the defendant or an accomplice was armed with a deadly weapon; and any felony offense under the Uniform Controlled Substances Act or the Imitation Controlled Substances Act, committed on or after July 1, 1988.

The term of community placement begins either upon completion of the term of confinement or when the offender is transferred to community custody status in lieu of earned early release time. If the offender is sentenced to the statutory maximum period of confinement, then the community placement portion of the sentence is only for the time, if any, that the offender is in community custody status in lieu of earned early release.

Violent Offenses: A violent offense means: any class A felony or attempt to commit a class A felony; criminal solicitation of or criminal conspiracy to commit a class A felony; manslaughter in the first or second degree; indecent liberties if committed by forcible compulsion; second degree kidnaping; second degree arson; second degree assault; assault of a child in the second degree; extortion in the first degree; second degree robbery; drive-by shooting; and vehicular assault, and vehicular homicide, when proximately caused by the driving while under the influence of liquor or drugs, or by the operation of any vehicle in a reckless manner. It also includes felonies in effect prior to July 1, 1976, that are comparable to these felonies, and any federal or out-of-state conviction for an offense that would be classified here as a violent offense.

Categorization of Crimes for Prosecution Standards: Crimes are categorized as crimes against persons,— and crimes against property/other crimes,— for the purposes of determining the applicable standards for prosecution. For example, crimes against persons will be filed if sufficient admissible evidence exists, which, when considered with the most plausible, reasonably foreseeable defense that could be raised under the evidence, would justify conviction by a reasonable and objective fact-finder. But crimes against property/other crimes will be filed if the admissible evidence is of such convincing force as to make it probable that a reasonable and objective fact-finder would convict after hearing all the admissible evidence and the most plausible defense that could be raised.

Summary:

Community Placement for Certain Offenders: The list of offenses for which the court is required to impose a term of community placement is amended to include: violent offenses and any crime against a person (whether or not the defendant or an accomplice was armed with a deadly weapon).

Categorization of Crimes for Prosecution Standards: The crimes of stalking, custodial assault, and violations of domestic violence no-contact orders and protection orders are added to the list of crimes against persons.–
