Staff: Bill Perry (786-7123).

Background:

Arbitration is a nonjudicial method for resolving disputes in which a neutral party is given authority to decide the case. Arbitration is intended to be a less expensive and time-consuming way of settling problems than taking a dispute to court. Parties are generally free to agree between themselves to submit an issue to arbitration. In some cases, however, arbitration is mandatory.

A statute allows any superior court, by majority vote of its judges, to adopt mandatory arbitration in prescribed cases. In counties of 70,000 or more population, the county legislative authority may also impose this mandatory arbitration. This mandatory arbitration applies to cases in which the sole relief sought is a money judgment of $15,000 or less. By a two-thirds vote, the judges of the superior court may raise this limit to $35,000. These limits were set at their current levels in 1988, when they were raised from $10,000 and $25,000, respectively.

An award by an arbitrator may be appealed to the superior court. The superior court will hear the appeal "de novo." That is, the court on appeal will conduct a trial on all issues of fact and law essentially as though the arbitration had not occurred.

Under Initiative 695, any increase in a "tax" requires voter approval. For purposes of the initiative, the term "tax" includes taxes, fees, and "any monetary charge by government."

Summary of Bill:

In counties with a population of more than 100,000, the mandatory arbitration program is established automatically without a vote of the superior court judges or the county legislative authority. In counties with a population of less than 100,000, the mandatory arbitration program can be established by majority vote of the superior court judges or by the county legislative authority.

A county legislative authority may impose a filing fee of up to $120 for a mandatory arbitration. These fees are to be used for the mandatory arbitration program.

Fiscal Note: Requested January 26, 2000.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.
