- Proceeds from the sale of these emblems are to be used for bicycle and pedestrian safety education after Department of Licensing recoups its costs.

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION

Majority Report: Do pass as amended. Signed by 21 members: Representatives Fisher, Chair; Cooper, Vice Chair; Lovick, Vice Chair; Erickson, Haigh, Hatfield, Holmquist, Jackley, Jarrett, Mielke, Morell, Murray, Ogden, Reardon, Rockefeller, Romero, Schindler, Simpson, Sullivan, Wood and Woods.

Minority Report: Without recommendation. Signed by 4 members: Representatives Mitchell, Ranking Minority Member; Anderson, Hankins and Skinner.

Staff: Penny Nerup (786-7335).

Background:

In 1997 13-year-old Cooper Jones was killed in Spokane while riding his bicycle in an approved bicycle rally. In 1998 the Cooper Jones Act was passed, which created an advisory committee to develop programs to promote bicycle and pedestrian safety and to advise the Traffic Safety Commission on these issues. Members of the advisory committee include persons from all affected agencies, the insurance industry, and organized bicycle groups (like the Seattle-to-Portland race committee).

The Cooper Jones Act also created the bicycle and pedestrian safety account to support the education and safety programs. Currently, this account is funded predominantly with some donations from private sources. Federal grants are used to fund projects.

Summary of Amended Bill:

Cooper Jones license plate emblems are established.

The Department of Licensing (DOL), the Washington State Patrol, and the Traffic Safety Commission are required to design an appropriate license plate emblem for distribution by the DOL. The fee for these emblems is $25; the DOL may deduct up to $5 of this amount to pay its administration costs. Proceeds from the sale of the emblems will first be deposited in the motor vehicle fund until all expenses incurred by DOL in designing and producing the emblems are recovered; thereafter the proceeds will be deposited in the bicycle and pedestrian safety account to be used for safety education.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Effective Date of Amended Bill: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: This is a voluntary way to pay for this safety program. Since it was created, the Cooper Jones committee has provided wonderful programs. This is an appropriate option to fund this program.

Testimony Against: None.

Testified: Senator Jacobsen, prime sponsor; Martha and David Jones, parents of Cooper Jones; Steve Lind, Traffic Safety Commission; and Don Martin, Bicycle Alliance of Washington.
