Background:

At 11 a.m.. on November 11, 1918, (the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month), World War I came to an end. On the first anniversary of the truce, President Woodrow Wilson issued a proclamation eulogizing fallen Allied soldiers and referring to November 11 as Armistice Day.

In 1921, an unknown World War I American soldier was buried in Arlington National Cemetery. Similar ceremonies occurred in England and France giving international recognition to the celebrated ending of World War I.

Armistice Day officially received its name in 1926 through a Congressional Resolution, and became a national holiday in 1938. It was the hope that World War I was "the War to end all Wars." But not long after the holiday was proclaimed, World War II broke out in Europe.

In 1954, President Eisenhower signed a bill proclaiming November 11 as Veterans Day, recognizing the sacrifices of veterans of World War II and Korea in preserving world peace. Veterans Day became a day to pay tribute to those who had served America in all wars.

According to the United States Department of Veterans Affairs there are 25 million living veterans, 48 million Americans who have served in the armed forces since 1776, and nearly one million Americans who have died in combat or combat-related events. The 2000 census indicates that there are 670,628 veterans living in Washington. -
