Brief Summary of Bill

- Instructs the Code Reviser to refrain from using specific offensive or demeaning terms in language of new and revised laws in reference to individuals with disabilities.

Hearing Date: 2/6/04

Staff: Matt Kuehn (786-7291).

Background:

The Revised Code and the Washington Administrative Code both contain extensive references to various individuals with disabilities. With the exception of language used as a specific term of art for purposes of the criminal code and criminal sentencing, these references are generally not essential to describing the circumstances of the particular individual.

Most recent legislation has adopted terms that emphasize the individuality of people, no matter what their physical characteristics. Older legislative language utilized terms appropriate to the moment, some of which are neither appropriate nor specifically necessary for the law.

Summary of Bill:

The Code Reviser is directed to avoid references to certain words that are frequently used to describe individuals with disabilities. The specific terms are: disabled; developmentally disabled; mentally disabled; mentally ill; mentally retarded; handicapped; cripple; and crippled.

These terms are to be avoided in future laws as well as replaced in existing statutes as those statutes are amended by law. The replacement terms are: individuals with disabilities; individuals with developmental disabilities; individuals with mental disabilities; individuals with mental illness; and individuals with mental retardation.

While the terms used are generally replaceable with contemporary terms, the use of "mentally retarded" is used as a term of art and is specifically defined in RCW 10.95.030, which concerns sentencing for aggravated murder. 71A.10 RCW is an entire chapter discussing developmental disabilities, and RCW 71A.10.20 specifically defines "developmental disabilities." This definition is used in 10.77 RCW, the chapter concerning procedures for the criminally insane.

Agency orders must also reflect the changes in language. A new section in the Administrative Procedure Act, 34.05 RCW, compels agencies to use respectful language in creating new rules or amending old rules.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.
