Hearing Date: 2/13/07

Staff: Marsha Reilly (786-7135).

Background:

Initiative 276, passed by the voters in 1972, established disclosure of campaign finances, lobbyist activities, financial affairs of elective officers and candidates, and access to public records. That initiative also created the Public Disclosure Commission (PDC), a five-member, bi-partisan citizen commission, to enforce the provisions of the campaign finance disclosure law.

In 1992, the Fair Campaign Practices Act was enacted following passage of Initiative 134. That initiative imposed campaign contribution limits on elections for statewide and legislative office, further regulated independent expenditures, restricted the use of public funds for political purposes, and required public officials to report gifts received in excess of $50.

The initiatives resulted in three distinct subject areas: 1) disclosure of campaign related activities; 2) disclosure of public records held by public entities; and 3) campaign contribution limits for certain elected offices. The PDC administers disclosure of campaign related activities and campaign contribution limits. The Attorney General has enforcement authority over disclosure of public records held by public entities. However, because of the placement of the statutes in code, responsibility for enforcement of the public records disclosure statutes was not clear.

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

In 2005, the Legislature enacted SHB 1133 resulting in recodification of the public records portion of the Public Disclosure Act into a new chapter, Chapter 42.56 RCW. Also in 2005, the staff of the House State Government Operations and Accountability Committee was directed to reorganize and update the remaining statutes in Chapter 42.17.

Summary of Bill:
