Background:

Under the Ethics in Public Service law, state officers and employees are prohibited from using state property under their official control or direction for their own, or another's, private benefit or gain. As defined in the law, a "state officer" means every person holding a position of public trust in or under an executive, legislative, or judicial office of the state. A "state employee" is an individual who is employed by an agency in any branch of state government. The ethics boards for each of the three branches of state government are authorized to adopt rules providing exceptions for occasional use, of de minimis cost and value, if the activity does not result in interference with the proper performance of public duties.

Use of public resources to benefit others as part of the employee's or officer's "official duties" is not prohibited. "Official duty" is specifically defined in the Ethics in Public Service law as "those duties within the specific scope of employment of the state officer or state employee as defined by the officer's or employee's agency or by statute or the state Constitution."

School districts are municipal corporations, possess all the usual powers of a public corporation, may sue and be sued and transact all business necessary for maintaining the school and protecting the rights of the district, and may enter into such obligations as are authorized by law. School district employees are not "state employees" as the term is defined in the Ethics in Public Service law.

Summary of Bill:

School district employees are prohibited from using property, money or persons under their official control, direction, or custody, without authorization, for their own, or another's, private benefit or gain. Each school district board of directors may adopt policies permitting occasional use, of de minimis cost and value, if the activity does not interfere with the proper performance of public duties.

Like the similar provision in the Ethics in Public Service law, the use of public resources to benefit others as part of the employee's official duties is not prohibited. "Official duty" is not defined.

The Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI) is directed to adopt disciplinary guidelines for violations of the law.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Requested on 1/29/2009.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of the session in which the bill is passed.
