Background:

Certificates of Participation.

Institutions of higher education can finance the acquisition, construction and renovation of facilities using state bonds. Bond proceeds for these projects are appropriated in the capital budget. In addition to financing through state bonds, higher education institutions are authorized to enter into financing contracts, such as Certificates of Participation (COPs), which are a type of security sold for a particular purpose and backed by any component of fees and revenues the university derives from its ownership and operation of its facilities. The COPs must be authorized in the Capital Budget and, once authorized, the institution is allowed to begin the construction or purchase process.

Certificates of Participation are not subject to appropriation by the Legislature and do not obligate State General Fund revenues to be used for their completion. Nor do these contracts count towards state debt limit.

Maintenance and Operations Funding.

Higher education institutions typically receive maintenance and operations (M&O) funding in the operating budget for instructional space financed through state bonds. Funding M&O for buildings financed through other mechanisms, such as COPs, typically is not included in the operating budget unless the Legislature makes an exception for a particular facility.

Summary of Substitute Bill:

Current, past, and future higher educational instructional space at community and technical colleges financed through COPs are eligible to receive M&O funding to the same extent funding would be provided if the space were financed using state bonds.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of the session in which the bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony (Education Appropriations):

(In support) Currently, there is no policy for dealing with how the state funds maintenance and operations (M&O) on facilities funded by Certificates of Participation. The COPs must go through the Capital Budget process and the Legislature must approve and authorize COPs. This process allows colleges the ability to build buildings without tying up state bond capacity yet, upon completion, the state owns the buildings. Given the lack of a clear policy, each year the colleges and institutions must request M&O funding from the Legislature for these buildings. Other buildings financed with state bonds receive M&O funding at the maintenance level of the budget. Maintenance and operations funding is important as it is used to ensure the state's assets are protected. The lack of a clear policy results in challenges at the college and institution level as they develop their budgets each year. Providing M&O funding for instructional space financed by COPs will help ensure the state's buildings are maintained and preserved adequately.

(Opposed) None.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony (Ways & Means):

(In support) There has been confusion in the past with regards to the state's funding of maintenance and operations (M&O) at the two-year community and technical colleges. This bill provides a clear policy for the state that funds M&O for instructional space on both state financed and Certificate of Participation (COPs) financed projects. The COPs represent a partnership between a college and the state. The college enters into a financing agreement and the debt service is paid by the college. The debt is not counted against the state bond limit and the state owns the building once the debt is paid off. Although there has been no guarantee of state M&O funds for COP financed instructional space, the state has often provided funding for such space upon request. Yet, when and if the state does not provide this funding, the local college must find funds to support M&O which can be difficult. From a teaching perspective, it is difficult to teach in facilities that are not adequately maintained. Therefore, whatever can be done to provide for more adequate maintenance of existing and future buildings is welcome.

(With concerns) The original bill included the four-year institutions and reinstating them back in the bill would be an improvement. Recently, a bill was passed in the Capital Budget Committee which allows the four-year institutions to use either COPs or university-backed bonds for facilities that would otherwise be funded in the Capital Budget using state bonds. This frees up capacity in the state bond limit for other uses of Capital Budget funds. If the four-year universities are going to fund buildings with COPs or university-backed bonds, they would like to be eligible for M&O funding. Furthermore, as institutions consider alternative financing approaches for future buildings and acquisitions, including them in the bill would be beneficial.

(Opposed) None.
