SENATE COMMITTEE ON JUDICIARY

Staff: Brandon Roché (786-7405)

Background: The Legislature adopted the Uniform Management of Institutional Funds Act (UMIFA) in 1973. The UMIFA provides guidelines for the management, investment, and expenditure of funds held by charitable institutions. The UMIFA applies to institutions that are organized and operated exclusively for educational, religious, or charitable purposes, including governmental organizations if they hold funds exclusively for any of these purposes.

The UMIFA establishes the standard of conduct that applies to an institution's decisions in managing institutional funds, making investment decisions, and authorizing expenditures from the fund. The institution must exercise ordinary business care and prudence, considering the long- and short-term needs of the institution, its present and anticipated financial requirements, expected total return on investments, price level trends, and general economic conditions.

The UMIFA also contains procedures for removing restrictions in a gift instrument on the use or investment of the gift. A restriction in the gift instrument may be released either with the written consent of the donor, or through court order if the court finds that the restriction is obsolete, inappropriate, or impracticable, and the donor's consent cannot be obtained due to death, disability, or unavailability.

In 2006 the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws approved a revised version of the UMIFA, the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act, to update the standards and guidelines that apply to managing, investing, and spending funds of charitable institutions.

Summary of Bill: The UMIFA is repealed and replaced with the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act (UPMIFA). The UPMIFA establishes updated and more specific standards and guidelines for the management and investment of charitable funds and the expenditure of a charitable institution's endowment funds.

Standard of Conduct. Decisions regarding management and investment of institutional funds and expenditures or accumulations of endowment funds must be made in good faith and with the care an ordinarily prudent person would use in similar circumstances.

Managing and Investing Institutional Funds. An institution, in managing and investing an institutional fund, must consider the charitable purposes of the institution and the purposes of the institutional fund. Additional rules are provided for the management and investment of institutional funds. The factors that must be considered in making investment decisions are expanded to include tax consequences of investment decisions; the role each investment or course of action plays in the overall investment portfolio; other resources of the institution; and any special relationship or value of an asset to the charitable purposes of the institution. Decisions concerning an individual asset must be made not in isolation, but in the context of the overall investment strategy. The institution must diversify investments unless the purposes of the fund are better served without diversification. A person with special skills or expertise has a duty to use the skills or expertise in managing and investing institutional funds.

Restrictions on Use or Investment of Institutional Funds. The circumstances under which a court may modify a restriction in a gift instrument that is impracticable, wasteful, or impossible to achieve are expanded. Any modification must be consistent with the donor's probable intent and the charitable purposes expressed in the gift instrument. An institution may release a restriction in a gift instrument without court approval as long as the institution uses the property in a manner consistent with the charitable purposes expressed in the gift instrument, if the fund subject to the restriction is more than 20 years old and has a value of less than $75,000. The $75,000 limitation is increased annually by $2,500 beginning July 1, 2011.

The Attorney General must be provided notice of any proposed modification of a purpose or restriction in a gift instrument.
