Background: The Fair Campaign Practices Act was enacted following passage of Initiative 134 in 1992. The initiative imposed campaign contribution limits on elections for statewide and legislative offices, further regulated independent expenditures, restricted the use of public funds for political purposes, and required public officials to report gifts received in excess of $50. In 2006 contribution limits were expanded to include elections for certain county and special purpose district offices, and for judicial offices.

A series of court decisions have identified a number of constitutional limitations on the regulation of campaign financing. Certain constitutionally permissible restrictions on such financing have also been identified in those decisions. In those cases, the courts found the following to be permissible:

- limitations on contributions by individuals or organizations to candidates;

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

- limitations on contributions by individuals or organizations to political action committees;
- limitations on contributions by political action committees to candidates;
- limitations on total contributions by individuals in a calendar year to candidates and political committees;
- prohibition of the use of corporation and labor organization general treasury funds to support or oppose the nomination or election of a candidate through contributions to political action committees, independent expenditures, or electioneering communications;
- public financing of campaigns; and
- reporting and disclosure of independent expenditures and electioneering communications.

Found to be impermissible were ceilings on candidate expenditures or on independent expenditures. Upheld, however, were ceilings on a candidate's expenditures, which become effective only as part of a public financing agreement under which a candidate agrees to abide by the limits in exchange for public financing.

Arizona, Maine, and Connecticut have enacted public financing programs for statewide and legislative offices. North Carolina has enacted a public financing program for Supreme Court and Court of Appeals offices.

Summary of Bill: The bill as referred to committee not considered.

Summary of Bill (Recommended Substitute): The Judicial Elections Reform Act (Act) is created to introduce a voluntary pilot project to provide an alternative source of financing for candidates for the Washington Supreme Court.

The Judicial Reform Act Fund (Fund) is created in the custody of the State Treasurer. Only the Public Disclosure Commission (PDC) can authorize expenditures from the fund.

Program Requirements. The program is voluntary. Candidates who wish to participate in the program must agree to the following:

- only accept contributions from individuals, and only as qualifying contributions;
- during the qualifying period accept a limited amount from the candidate's personal funds;
- collect at least 500 qualifying contributions that, in the aggregate, total at least 25 times the filing fee for the office of supreme court justice;
- file required reports;
- expend only funds received from the Fund; and
- sign a joint statement with the treasurer of the publicly financed candidate's authorized committee, under oath, promising to comply with the provisions of the Act.

Qualifying Contributions. To qualify for participation in the Act, a candidate must obtain at least 500 qualifying contributions that, in the aggregate, total at least 25 times the filing fee for the office. A qualifying contribution must be made by a registered voter of the state and must be received during the qualifying period. The individual contributor must not be given anything of value in exchange for the contribution. The amount of the contribution must be at least $10 and not more than 25 percent of the contribution limit set in statute, and must be made by check, money order, or credit card. Up to 25 percent of the minimum dollar amount of qualifying contributions may be used to pay for expenses related to raising qualifying contributions.

Certification Procedure. A candidate who wishes to participate must submit an application with the PDC, declaring his or her intent to participate in the program. The application must be submitted either before or during the qualifying period. The candidate must submit a report itemizing the qualifying contributions received including the name, address, telephone number, and county of residence for each person who made a contribution, along with the date the contribution was received. The PDC must review the application and determine if a candidate meets the requirements within seven calendar days. If an application is denied, the PDC must provide written reasons for the denial. A candidate who is denied certification may reapply one time within 14 days of denial. A candidate who is certified as a public financed candidate may use that designation in campaign materials and will be so designated in the state voters' pamphlet.

Revocation. A publicly financed candidate may revoke a decision to participate in the program no later than June 30 of the year of the election. Within 30 days of revocation, all money received from the Fund must be repaid with interest. If a candidate revokes after June 30, the candidate must return all money received from the Fund and pay a fine of $1,000 per day for each day beyond the allowed revocation period and the day the candidate revokes. A publicly financed candidate who revokes financing is disqualified from the program for the following seven-year period.

Campaign Funding. Within five business days after a publicly financed candidate's name is approved to appear on the primary ballot, the PDC must authorize distribution of funds for the primary election. The amount of funding for the primary election must be set by rule by the PDC based on the number of participating candidates filing for office. The amount may not exceed 50 times the filing fee for the office. Within five business days after a publicly financed candidate's name is approved to appear on the general election ballot, the PDC must authorize an amount equal to 50 times the filing fee. Publicly financed candidates in uncontested elections must receive four times the filing fee. A publicly financed candidate must return, within ten calendar days, funds distributed that are unspent and uncommitted as of the date that the candidate ceases to be a candidate, or as of the date of the election, whichever occurs first.

Public Disclosure Commission. The PDC must:

- collect a fee of 20 percent of the total contribution on each campaign contribution made in the state;
- prescribe forms for statements, notices, and other documents as required;
- prepare and publish instructions to facilitate compliance with the Judicial Election Reform Act Fund;
- adopt necessary rules; and
- enforce the provisions of the Act, ensure that the money that is transferred from the Fund into the account of the authorized candidate or committee is spent appropriately.

The program may not be implemented until a permanent financing source is created and $1 million is in the judicial election reform act fund.

Penalties. The civil penalty for a violation of a contribution or expenditure limit may result in a fine of ten times the amount by which the expenditures or contributions exceed the applicable limit. If the violation occurs within five days of an election, the civil penalty is 20 times the amount by which the expenditures or contributions exceed the applicable amount. A violation of any reporting violation by a publicly financed candidate is subject to a fine of $100 per day not to exceed twice the amount not reported in a timely manner. The civil penalty for late revocation will result in a fine of $1,000 per day for each day beyond the allowed revocation period.

All civil penalties collected must be deposited into the judicial election reform act fund.

Campaign contribution is defined as any cash or equivalent paid to a political committee.

EFFECT OF CHANGES MADE BY GOVERNMENT OPERATIONS & ELECTIONS COMMITTEE (Recommended Substitute): The definition of person is removed. The Judicial Election Reform Act cannot be offered to qualifying candidates until such time as a permanent funding source is created. A candidate who is required to return funds must repay the funds with interest. The penalty for failure to report contributions to nonparticipating candidates, and failure to report an independent expenditure, is the same as the penalty for failure to report contributions and expenditures by publicly financed candidates. The civil penalty for a person submitting a false affidavit related to a qualifying contribution must be twice the dollar amount of the contribution for which the affidavit was submitted. A publicly financed candidate who revokes public financing is disqualified from the program for the following seven-year period. The seven-year period will commence when notice of revocation is submitted. A participating candidate who is disqualified from the program for violations of spending and contributions must be disqualified permanently. No candidate may receive public funds in an amount greater than 50 times the filing fee for the primary or general election. Public funding may not be used for the benefit of members of the candidate's family.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Requested on January 29, 2010.
[OFM requested ten-year cost projection pursuant to I-960.]

Committee/Commission/Task Force Created: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony on Proposed Substitute As Heard in Committee:
PRO: Fair elections are the foundation of democracy. We need to minimize the impact of out-of-state money in our elections in Washington State. We need locally controlled and locally funded elections. The judicial branch is very interested in the idea of public funding for judicial campaigns but has not yet come to a formal opinion on the issue. The spending for electing supreme court justices has increased greatly in recent years. The money comes from a few sources with decided points of view. This aims to remove any chance of bankable judicial votes. Judges should be able to opt out of corporate funding if they want to. This just gives an option to judges who wish to participate. We don't want to become like West Virginia. This bill preserves and protects faith in the judicial and election systems by removing political action committee money and corporate sponsorship of judicial campaigns. Over time, public funding of campaigns will reduce the cost of elections. This will keep the appearance of judicial bias away from our courts. There are justices of the supreme court who are in favor of this bill.
