Background:

Community custody is the portion of an offender's sentence served in the community subject to supervision by the Department of Corrections (DOC). The court must order community custody for an offender who is convicted of specified crimes. While on community custody, offenders are subject to a variety of conditions imposed by the court and the DOC. If an offender violates the conditions, the offender may be required to serve up to the remaining portion of his or her sentence in confinement.

Community Custody Terms.

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

Certain crimes carry a mandatory term of community custody as imposed by the courts. If an offender is sentenced to the custody of the DOC for a sex offense or a serious violent offense, the court must, in addition to the other terms of the sentence, sentence the offender to community custody for three years.

If the offender is convicted of a violent offense (that is not a serious violent offense), the court must sentence the offender to 18 months of community custody. Other offenders that have been convicted of a crime against persons, Unlawful Possession of a Firearm where the offender is a criminal street gang member or associate, a drug offense, or a felony violation of Failure to Register offense, must be sentenced to one year of community custody by the court.

The DOC supervises offenders who are convicted of certain misdemeanors and gross misdemeanors and are sentenced to probation. Courts are required to order probation for offenders convicted of the following offenses:

- Sexual Misconduct with a Minor in the second degree;
- Custodial Sexual Misconduct in the second degree;
- Communication with a Minor for Immoral Purposes;
- nonfelony Failure to Register as a Sex Offender;
- a repetitive Domestic Violence (DV) offense; and
- Assault in the fourth degree or violation of a DV court order where the offender has a prior conviction for a violent offense, a sex offense, a crime against a person, Assault in the fourth degree, or violation of a DV court order.

Community Custody Conditions.

Every offender sentenced to a period of community custody must report and be placed under the supervision of the DOC. The DOC must assess the offender's risk to reoffend and may establish and modify the offender's conditions of community custody based on the offender's risk to community safety and conditions imposed by the court. If the DOC imposes any additional conditions, the DOC must notify the offender in writing of any such additional conditions or modifications relating to the offender's community custody. The offender may request an administrative review from the DOC by the close of the next business day after receiving notice of a condition imposed or modified by the DOC.

Detainment Following Arrest and Reporting Requirements.

The DOC may issue warrants for the arrest of any offender who violates a condition of community custody. If an offender has been arrested for a new felony offense while under community custody, the DOC must hold the offender in total confinement until a hearing before the DOC is provided or until the offender is formally charged for the new felony offense, whichever is earlier.

A community corrections officer (CCO) may also arrest an offender for any crime committed in his or her presence. The facts and circumstances of the conduct of the offender must be reported by the CCO, with recommendations, to the court or the DOC hearings officer.

Upon an arrest, the offender is detained in the county jail of the county in which the offender was taken into custody and the offender may not be released on bail or personal recognizance except through approval of the court or authorized DOC staff.

Hearings and Sanctions.

If an offender is accused of violating any condition or requirement of community custody, he or she is entitled to a hearing before the DOC prior to the imposition of sanctions. For offenders not in total confinement, the hearing must be held within 15 working days. For offenders in total confinement, the hearing must be held within five working days.

The offender has the right to be present at the hearing, have assistance, offer testimony, witnesses, provide written evidence, and question witnesses.

Generally, an offender who violates any condition or requirement of his or her community custody may be sanctioned by the DOC with up to 60 days confinement for each violation. Alternatives to confinement, such as work release, home detention with electronic monitoring, work crew, community restitution, inpatient treatment, daily reporting, curfew, education or counseling sessions, electronic home monitoring or any other sanctions available in the community, may be used in lieu of confinement.

An offender who has not completed his or her maximum term of total confinement, and is found in violation of the terms of supervision at a third community custody violation hearing, must be returned to total confinement in a state correctional facility to serve the remaining portion of his or her sentence. There is an exception where it is determined that returning the offender to incarceration would substantially interfere with the offender's ability to maintain necessary community supports or to participate in necessary treatment or programming and would substantially increase the offender's likelihood of reoffending.

Firearms.

It is a community custody violation for an offender sentenced to a term of community custody under the supervision of the DOC to own, use, or possess firearms or ammunition.

Summary of Bill:

Detainment Following Arrest and Reporting Requirements.

If an offender has been arrested by the DOC for a new felony offense while on community custody, the facts and circumstances of the conduct must be reported by the CCO to local law enforcement or local prosecution for consideration of new charges. The CCO's report will serve as notice that the DOC will hold the offender in total confinement for up to three days following the time of arrest.

If a CCO arrests an offender for a crime committed in his or her presence, the facts of the offender's conduct and any recommendations for the offender must be reported by the CCO to the court, or to local law enforcement or local prosecution (instead of a DOC hearings officer) for consideration of new charges.

When an offender under the custody of the DOC is arrested for a community custody violation or a CCO arrests the offender for a crime committed in the CCO's presence, the DOC must compensate the local jurisdiction where the offender is being detained until the DOC releases its detainer.

Hearings and Sanctions.

If an offender is accused of violating any condition or requirement of community custody, the DOC may address the violation behavior through offender disciplinary proceedings. The offender must be notified in writing of the violation process. Only those offenders accused of committing a high level community custody violation will receive a hearing before a DOC hearings board.

The sanction imposed by the DOC must be determined based on the offender's violation behavior. The DOC must adopt rules defining low level and high level violations, presumptive sanctions, and aggravating and mitigating factors.

The DOC must intervene when an offender commits a violation as follows:

- for the first low level violation, in lieu of confinement, the DOC may sanction the offender to one or more nonconfinement sanctions;
- for the second or subsequent low level violation, the offender may be sanctioned to not more than three days in total confinement; and
- if an offender is accused of committing a high level violation, he or she is entitled to a hearing before the DOC hearings board prior to imposition of sanctions, which may be up to 30 days in total confinement.

The offender may be held in total confinement pending the hearing, with prehearing time served credited to the offender's sanction time. For offenders in total confinement, the DOC must hold a hearing within five business days. For offenders not in total confinement, the DOC must hold a hearing within 15 business days.

The offender has the right to be present at the hearing, have assistance, offer testimony, witnesses, written evidence, question witnesses, and receive a written summary of the reasons for the hearing officer's decisions.

Alternatively, an offender who violates any condition or requirement of a sentence may be sanctioned by the court with up to 60 days confinement for each violation.

The State and its offices, agents, and employees may not be held criminally liable for a decision to elevate or not elevate an offender's behavior to a high level process, unless the decision is made with reckless disregard.

Firearms and Explosives.

The act of owning, using, or possessing firearms, ammunition, or explosives is considered a high level violation for an offender serving a community custody sentence.

Effective Date.

The changes to the terms of community supervision take effect March 1, 2012, and apply retroactively and prospectively regardless of the date of an offender's underlying offense.

The DOC Implementation Obligations.

The DOC is directed, for the next two years, to provide inpatient or outpatient chemical dependency treatment to offenders, within available resources; ensure law enforcement is informed of the changes in this bill; maintain channels of communication between the DOC and law enforcement about individual offenders; gather input from CCOs; and make annual reports on the implementation of this bill.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Preliminary fiscal note available.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect on March 1, 2012.
