Background: The Business and Occupation (B&O) tax is Washington's major business tax. The tax is imposed on the gross receipts of business activities conducted within the state, and revenues are deposited in the state General Fund. The B&O tax does not permit deductions for the costs of doing business, such as payments for raw materials and wages of employees. However, there are many exemptions for specific types of business activities as well as certain deductions and credits permitted under the B&O tax statutes.

A Community Development Financial Institution (CDFI) is a specialized financial institution certified by the United States Department of the Treasury to provide loans for community development purposes. A CDFI works in economically distressed markets that are underserved by traditional financial institutions. A CDFI provides financial products such as mortgage financing for low-income homebuyers and not-for-profit developers, flexible underwriting and risk capital for community facilities, and technical assistance and commercial loans to small businesses in low-income areas. At present, there are 22 certified CDFIs operating in Washington State.

Summary of Bill: A nonprofit organization certified as a CDFI by the federal CDFI fund may take a B&O tax deduction on interest received on or after August 1, 2011, from loans issued as part of a first-time home buyers program. A nonprofit organization is defined as an organization exempt from federal income tax under 26 U.S.C. Sec. 501(c)(3) of the federal Internal Revenue Code.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: This bill provides nonprofit CDFI organizations with the ability to deduct the interest they may receive on loans issued as part of a first time homebuyer's program. This program provides services and products in distressed targeted areas; it is there when other financial institutions or support is not available to first time homebuyers. This program gives first time homebuyers the opportunity to realize the American dream of home ownership. The bill is very limited, it will decrease the first time homebuyer's cost of financing, and will open up additional opportunities to reinvest those funds in the community thereby expanding this service to other first time homebuyers. This bill has a very small fiscal note, and its cost will be outweighed by the multitudes of people it will help. Homesight recently learned from the Washington Department of Revenue that the income it earns from interest paid on amortizing second mortgage loans originated as part of its program is taxable under the B&O tax. Because this is a new determination, the proposed tax exemption will not create a reduction in current state revenue; it is an exemption from future taxes.

Persons Testifying: PRO: Representative Kenney, prime sponsor; Steve Williams, Homesight.
