Some of these services are provided to the other statutorily created legislative agencies as well. In some cases, the management of an administrative function has evolved into a joint responsibility of the Senate and House of Representatives, while other services are provided through separate service delivery arrangements in each chamber.

In addition to the Senate and the House of Representatives, the legislative branch of state government consists of several statutory legislative agencies. The legislative agencies include:

- Joint Legislative Audit and Review Committee – conducts performance audits, program evaluations, special studies, and program sunset reviews;

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

- Joint Transportation Committee – serves as the joint fact-finding committee on transportation issues;
- Office of the State Actuary – provides actuarial services relating to state retirement systems and other programs;
- Joint Legislative Systems Committee – administers legislative information processing and communications systems; and
- Legislative Evaluation and Accountability Program Committee – provides information and technology with respect to budgets and revenue.
