Background: Assault in the third degree is a class C felony that carries a penalty of imprisonment in a state correctional institution for a maximum term of not more than five years, or by a fine in an amount fixed by the court of not more than $10,000 or by both imprisonment and fine.

The offense is committed by assaulting a person, while in the performance of his or her official duties. The types of persons identified in the assault in the third degree statute include: transit operators, school bus drivers, firefighters or other employees of a fire department, law enforcement officers or other employees of a law enforcement agency, nurses, physicians, or health care providers, or by assaulting a peace officer with a projectile stun gun. Assault in the third degree is also committed when a person, acting with criminal negligence, causes bodily harm to another person by means of a weapon or other instrument or thing likely to produce bodily harm. A person who acts with criminal negligence and causes bodily harm accompanied by substantial pain that extends for a period sufficient to cause considerable suffering is committing assault in the third degree.

Judges, judicial officers, court reporters, clerks, and other court personnel seek to provide justice in a safe and neutral forum. Proponents of this act believe the number and severity of threats and security incidents directed at judicial officers and court personnel have been increasing in recent years.

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

Summary of Bill: A person is guilty of assault in the third degree if that person assaults a judicial officer, court-related employee, county clerk, or county clerk's employee, while the person is performing his or her official duties at the time of the assault or as a result of the person's employment within the judicial system. The definition of "court-related employee" includes bailiffs, court reporters, judicial assistants, court managers, court managers' employees, and any other employee who is engaged in equivalent functions.
