Committee Activity: Health & Long-Term Care: 1/19/11.

SENATE COMMITTEE ON HEALTH & LONG-TERM CARE

Staff: Rhoda Donkin (786-7465)

Background: Currently in state law, nursing facilities, boarding homes, and adult family homes are not permitted to request or require residents to sign waivers of potential liability for losses of personal property or injury, or to sign waivers of their rights under the state residents' rights statute. These rights covered in 70.129 RCW include all aspects of life within a long-term care facility – including such things as visitation, privacy, transfer, discharge, personal property storage, and prohibitions against physical or chemical restraint. Other rights that protect vulnerable adults against exploitation, abuse, neglect, and abandonment are laid out in some detail in the abuse of vulnerable adults statute. In this chapter, 74.34 RCW, there is no right to waive legal action that may be taken should a vulnerable adult become victimized.

Typically, long-term care facilities may ask residents to agree to sign arbitration agreements which replace their right to sue if they are victims of abuse or neglect. These agreements provide for faster, less expensive resolution of disputes. There is concern, however, that arbitration agreements are misunderstood by residents, who may sign them without knowing that they limit legal action and reduce the potential recovery of costs including attorney's fees, and other forms of relief typically achievable through a jury trial, should they become victims of abuse or neglect in a facility.

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

Summary of Bill: Residents of long-term care facilities may not be forced to sign waivers of their rights under the state's residents rights statute, or sign waivers of any rights set forth in the vulnerable adults statute, without prior advice from the resident's attorney.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Committee/Commission/Task Force Created: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: These arbitration agreements are part of a stack of documents that new residents are asked to sign at a time when they are very stressed and probably anxious. It is wrong to ask people to sign away their legal rights when they are dealing with so much and probably not informed enough to know what they are doing.

OTHER: Most Medicaid residents don't have attorneys. This puts an unfair burden on them. This will cause liability insurance premiums to go up for facilities if they can not protect themselves against extremely expensive lawsuits.

Persons Testifying: PRO: Louise Ryan, LTC Ombudsman; Jeff Crollard, LTC Ombudsman attorney.

OTHER: Dave Knutson, WA Health Care Assn.; Julie Peterson, Aging Services of Washington.
