Hearing Date: 1/24/13

Staff: Yvonne Walker (786-7841).

Background:

Process servers perform a variety of tasks such as filing court papers, serving legal documents and document retrieval. Their principal job is to deliver or serve notifications, summons, and other relevant legal documents to a person involved in a court matter. Usually, notice is furnished by delivering a set of court documents (process) to the person being served.

A person who serves legal process for a fee in the State of Washington is generally required to be 18 years of age or older, a resident of the State of Washington, and must register as a process server with the auditor of the county in which the process server resides or operates his or her principal place of business.

The crime is divided into four degrees depending on the manner in which it was committed or the amount of harm caused to the victim. For instance, an assault that would normally be considered Assault in the fourth degree (a gross misdemeanor offense), may be elevated to Assault in the third degree (a seriousness level III, class C felony offense), if the assault was committed against a certain class of persons. For example, an assault against a firefighter performing his or her official duties at the time of the assault is automatically Assault in the third degree. Similar provisions exist for assaults against transit operators, school bus drivers, law enforcement officers, health care providers, and court-related employees.

An offender convicted of Assault in the third degree may receive a maximum sentence of five years in prison, a maximum fine of $10,000, or both imprisonment and a fine for the class C felony offense. Assault in the fourth degree is a gross misdemeanor offense punishable by a sentence of up to 364 days in jail or a maximum fine of $5,000, or both imprisonment and a fine.

Summary of Bill:

An assault that would normally be Assault in the fourth degree may be elevated to Assault in the third degree, if the assault offense was committed against a person in the act of serving legal process.
