Hearing Date: 2/23/16

Staff: Dawn Eychaner (786-7135).

Background:

The Office of the Secretary of State (SOS) provides apostille and certificate of authentication services to authenticate documents that will be used in foreign countries. For documents that will be used in a country where the Hague Convention of 1961 Abolishing the Requirement for Legalization of Foreign Public Documents (Convention) is in force, an apostille may be used for the purpose of document authentication. The United States of America (U.S.) has three tiers of authorities "competent" under the terms of Article 6 of the Convention to issue apostilles for public documents. The U.S. Department of State and other federal agencies; clerks and deputy clerks of federal courts; and authorities designated by states, generally the SOS. In Washington, the SOS is designated as the "competent authority" to issue apostilles.

An apostille authenticates the seals and signatures of officials on public documents so that those documents can be recognized in countries that are parties to the Convention. An apostille is placed directly on the public document itself or on an attached page and can be affixed by various means, including a stamp, sticker, or an impressed seal.

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

To verify the authenticity of a document to be used in a country which is not a party to the Convention, an authentication certification may be issued by the SOS.

Examples of documents for which an apostille or authentication certification may be issued by the SOS include notarized or certified copies of Washington public school transcripts; birth, marriage, death, or divorce decrees or certificates; and other certified documents signed by state or county officials. The SOS charges a $15 fee per document authenticated. The SOS does not authenticate federal documents, certificates of naturalization, or Federal Bureau of Investigation clearances.

Summary of Bill:

The SOS may attest to the authenticity of the signature of a public official within Washington or a notary public.

The SOS may not certify or attest to the signature of a notary public on a document that relates to:

- allegiance to a government or jurisdiction;
- relinquishment or renunciation of citizenship, sovereignty, military status, or world service authority; or
- a claim of immunity from Washington state or federal laws.

The SOS is granted the authority to adopt rules to implement these powers.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of the session in which the bill is passed.
