Background: When an inmate receives any funds in addition to the inmate's wages or gratuities, those funds are subject to the following deductions:

- 5 percent to the crime victims' compensation account;
- 10 percent to a Department of Corrections personal inmate savings account;
- 20 percent for payment of legal financial obligations for all inmates who have legal financial obligations owing in any Washington State superior court;
- 20 percent for any child support owed under a support order;
- 20 percent to the Department of Corrections to contribute to the cost of incarceration; and other account or purpose. Money that remains unused in the inmate's medical fund at the time of release is subject to deductions.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Committee/Commission/Task Force Created: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: When families send money to loved ones who are incarcerated, a dollar is not always worth a dollar. Deduction rates for incoming funds may be as high as 95 percent. Medical copays of $4 are a new expense to inmates and they are currently subject to deductions. The existing Department of Corrections medical subaccount should be expanded to allow for this money to be received for inmates and not subject to deductions.

Persons Testifying: PRO: Julie Tackett, Dept. of Corrections Family Council.
