Background:

Hospitals must establish nurse staffing committees to develop and oversee an annual patient care unit and shift-based nurse staffing plan (nurse staffing plan); conduct a semiannual review of the nurse staffing plan; and review, assess, and respond to staffing concerns. Hospital finances may be taken into account in the development of a nurse staffing plan. A nurse staffing plan must consider such factors as:

- patient census, including total patients by unit and shift;
- level of intensity of patients and the nature of the care to be delivered on each shift;
- skill mix;
- level of experience of nurses providing care;
- the need for specialized or intensive equipment;
- the physical design of the patient care unit; and
- staffing guidelines adopted by national nursing associations, specialty associations, and other health professional associations.

If the chief executive officer of the hospital does not approve the nurse staffing committee's plan, he or she must provide a written explanation to the committee. The hospital may not retaliate against employees performing duties in connection with the nurse staffing committee or an individual who notifies the nurse staffing committee or the hospital administration about concerns on nurse staffing.

Summary of Engrossed Substitute Bill:

The duties of a nurse staffing committee are expanded to include the review, assessment, and response to staffing variations. The factors that must be considered in developing a nurse staffing plan are expanded to include:

- the availability of other personnel supporting nursing services;

- strategies to enable nurses to take meal and rest breaks as required by law or the terms of an applicable collective bargaining agreement, if any, between the hospital and a representative of the nursing staff; and
- hospital finances and resources.

If a hospital does not adopt a nurse staffing committee's staffing plan, the chief executive officer of the hospital must either identify the elements of the plan being changed or prepare an alternative plan that will be adopted by the hospital. Beginning January 1, 2019, a hospital must implement its nurse staffing plan and assign nursing personnel to patient care units according to the plan. The hospital must submit its adopted nurse staffing plans to the Department of Health (DOH) annually and whenever the plan is updated.

A nurse may report to the staffing committee any variations where the nurse personnel assignment in a patient care unit is not in accord with the adopted staffing plan and may make a complaint to the committee based on the variations. Shift-to-shift adjustments in staffing levels required by the plan may be made by the appropriate hospital personnel overseeing patient care operations only after consultation with at least one impacted registered nurse utilizing procedures specified by the committee. If a nurse on a patient care unit objects to a shift-to-shift adjustment, the registered nurse may submit the complaint to the committee. The committee must develop a process to examine and respond to these data, including the ability to determine if a specific complaint is resolved or dismissing a complaint based on unsubstantiated data.

The DOH must investigate a complaint for a violation of nurse staffing committee or nurse staffing plan requirements if the complaint has documented evidence of failure to:

- form or establish a staffing committee;
- conduct a semi-annual review of a nurse staffing plan;
- submit a nurse staffing plan on an annual basis or when updated; or
- follow the nurse personnel assignments as evidenced by the aggregate data of concerns for either shift-to-shift adjustment or reports of variations not in accordance with the adopted staffing plan. This must be evidenced by a minimum of a 60-day period of aggregate complaint data and where the staffing committee has not determined the complaints resolved. This does not apply in the event of unforeseeable emergency circumstances or where the hospital, after consultation with the nurse staffing committee, documents it has made reasonable efforts to obtain staffing to meet required assignments, but has been unable to do so.

"Unforeseeable emergency circumstance" is defined as:

- any unforeseen national, state, or municipal emergency;
- when a health care facility disaster plan is activated;
- any unforeseen disaster or other catastrophic event that substantially affects or increases the need for health care services; or
- when hospitals in a community are diverting patients to other hospitals for treatment.

If the DOH finds there has been a violation, the hospital must submit a corrective plan of action to the DOH of the presentation of findings to the hospital. Failure to submit or to follow a corrective plan of action may result in fines of $100 per day for all violations asserted against the hospital at any time until the hospital submits or begins to follow a corrective plan of action or takes other action agreed to by the DOH. The DOH must maintain for public inspection records of any civil penalties, administrative actions, or license suspensions or revocations imposed on hospitals for these purposes.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of the session in which the bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony (Health Care & Wellness):

(In support) Inadequate nurse staffing can cost patient lives through inadequate care and medical errors. Safe working conditions are linked to better patient care and lower costs. Nurse staffing committees, nurse staffing plans, and collective bargaining have not led to measurable changes in how staffing is developed. Nurses have experienced frustration with nurse staffing committees, which have not been sustained over time. Implementation of nurse staffing plans is inconsistent. Nurse staffing plans must be implemented. Hospitals are often administered by entities in other states, who make decisions on patient care remotely. A statewide regulatory plan is necessary. The current law does not have enough teeth. Nurse staffing ratios have worked in California. This bill is good for patients, nurses, and hospitals.

(Opposed) Hospitals are committed to patient safety and have worked with nurses to find a collaborative solution through the nurse staffing committees. Washington is not like California. Washington is a frontrunner in patient safety. A one-size-fits-all solution will not work for hospitals. For example, small hospitals in rural communities face different challenges than large hospitals in urban communities. Hospitals must use providers at the top of their licenses and must balance staff satisfaction in order to retain staff. This bill will limit a hospital's ability to provide nimble solutions to complicated problems. Minimum staffing ratios may cause hospitals to turn patients away. To improve patient care, a full complement of staff is necessary, not just minimum staff ratios.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony (Appropriations):

(In support) This legislation is critical for patient safety. The estimated number of complaints described in the fiscal note is far greater than the actual experience in Washington, and the fiscal impacts regarding the complaints will be negligible. This bill is a reasonable compromise; it is a small step towards patient safety. To date, there have only been six complaints regarding how nurses are staffed.

(Opposed) None.

(Other) The language in the bill is workable, and further discussions would be helpful. It is not clear which elements of nursing plans are subject to the complaints process. Additional clarity on that point is needed.

Persons Testifying (Health Care & Wellness): (In support) Cindy Clark, Service Employees International Union Healthcare 1199NW; Daniel O'Tool and Ann Tan Piazza, Washington State Nursing Association; Jeanette Moore, United Food and Commercial Workers; and Chris Barton, Service Employees International Union Nurse Alliance.

(Opposed) Lisa Thatcher, Washington State Hospital Association; Melissa Strong, Mason General Hospital; and Alison Bradywood, Virginia Mason Hospital.

Persons Testifying (Appropriations): (In support) Lindsay Grad, Service Employees International Union Healthcare 1199 Northwest; and Melissa Johnson, Washington State Nurses Association.

(Other) Lisa Thatcher, Washington State Hospital Association.
