This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

Background: The LCB issues three categories of marijuana-related business licenses: (1) the marijuana producer's license; (2) the marijuana processor's license; and (3) the marijuana retailer's license. All applicants applying for a marijuana business license must, among other requirements, have resided in the state of Washington for at least six months prior to an application for a marijuana license.

All partnerships, employee cooperatives, associations, nonprofit corporations, or corporations applying for a marijuana license must be formed in Washington and all their members are required to meet the six month residency requirement. Managers or agents who manage a marijuana licensee's place of business must also meet the six month residency requirement.

Summary of Bill: When applying for a marijuana license, 75 percent of the ownership interests are required to meet the six-month residency requirement. All interest holders who are not state residents must be resident citizens of the United States. The LCB is granted discretionary authority to deny a license to an entity if the entity has nonresident interest holders who are difficult to adequately investigate because of their nonresident status.

Managers or agents who manage a marijuana licensee's place of business are no longer required to meet the six-month residency requirement.

Technical corrections are made to statutory terminology to make it consistent with the terminology defined in the Uniform Business Organizations Code. Specifically, the terms partnership, employee cooperative, association, nonprofit corporation, and corporation are deleted and replaced by the general terms business entity or nonprofit entity.
