Background:

Withholding of Grades, Diploma, and Transcript. If school property, or property belonging to a contractor of the district, an employee, or another student, has been lost or willfully cut, defaced, or injured, the school district may withhold the grades, diploma, and transcript of the student responsible for the damage or loss until the student or the student's parent or guardian has paid for the damages. When the student and the student's parent or guardian are unable to pay for the damages, the school district must provide a program of voluntary work for the student in lieu of the payment of monetary damages. Upon completion of voluntary work the grades, diploma, and transcripts of the student must be released. The student's parent or guardian is liable for damages as otherwise provided by law.

Associated Student Body. An associated student body (ASB) is a formal student organization at a school. An ASB is approved of and regulated by the school board. School districts with one or more ASB programs must publish certain information about each ASB fund on the school or school district website each year.

Free and Reduced Price Meals. In order for students to qualify for free school meals, their family's income must be at or below 130 percent of the federal poverty level. Students whose families have an income between 130 percent and 185 percent of the federal poverty level are eligible for reduced-price meals.

Summary of Substitute Bill:

Limitation on Withholding. A school district must release the grades and transcripts of students responsible for damaging school property, or property belonging to a contractor of the district, an employee, or another student, five years after the student exits the district.

Notice. When informing either the student or the student's parent or guardian that the student's grades, diploma, or transcripts are being withheld, a school district must provide information about the statutory provisions, that is: (a) the school district may waive the payment of the monetary damage in part or in full; (b) the student may make the payment of monetary damages; (c) the student may participate in a program of community service opportunities for the student instead of the payment of monetary damages; and (d) the school district must release the student's grades and transcript five years after the student exits the district. When the student has already exited the district, the school district must inform the student of the date on which the school district is obligated to release the student's grades and transcript.

Report. Each school district that has an Associated Student Body must publish the following information on its website: how many former students who were enrolled in the district within the previous five years are subject to the withholding of their grades, diplomas, or transcripts; and how many of these former students were eligible for the Free or Reduced Price Meals Program in their last year of enrollment in the school district.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of the session in which the bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony:

(In support) When a student has been deemed to have done something wrong there should be consequences, but to withhold their transcript and prevent them from moving on from that episode in their life is unfair. Students should have the opportunity to make better choices in the future.

The change proposed in this bill would have a minor fiscal impact on school districts, because few of these fines and fees are collected. However, this change will open up great educational and future career opportunities by allow students to access their official high school transcripts. Students with a secondary credential will be able to use their high school course taking as part of admissions and placement into college and career pathways, essential to earn a living wage.

Fines and fees disproportionately impact underrepresented and lower socioeconomic status populations. Even if unintentional, this creates inequity for Washington's residents. Finally, denying students access to their educational records is a violation of the federal Family Education Rights and Privacy Act.

The High School 21 program opens the door to education to those who did not complete high school and introduces them to college and career pathways. When people learn that high school credits from the past can be applied to earning a high school diploma now, they are surprised and relieved that they do not have to start over. This relief turns to frustration if they learn that their grades or transcripts are withheld because they owe a fine or fee that they are unable to pay. This fee or fine creates a barrier to these people starting in the High School 21 program and may even stall or prevent them from coming back to school at all.

The change proposed in the bill is consistent with recent state laws enacted around student discipline.

(Opposed) None.
