such as roads, schools, hospitals, libraries, and fire districts in the counties in which the lands are located. Revenues generated by state forestlands are distributed to the counties and the various junior taxing districts based on the geographic location in which the revenue was generated.

The 2018 supplemental capital budget contained a provision in the trust land transfer appropriation that directed DNR to exchange land within the Common School Trust for state forestlands of equal value within the area known as the Harriet A. Spanel State Forest by June 30, 2019. The taxing districts of the former Common School Trust land may change as a result of the inter-trust land exchange.

Summary of Bill: In order to test county flexibility in distributing state forestland revenue, a county may pay, distribute, and prorate payments of monies derived from the former Common School Trust land exchanged into the State Forestlands Trust in the same manner as general taxes are paid for the former state forestlands that were subject to the exchange.
