SENATE COMMITTEE ON HUMAN SERVICES, REENTRY & REHABILITATION

Staff: Alison Mendiola (786-7488)

Background: The Deficit Reduction Act. The federal Deficit Reduction Act (DRA), enacted in 2005, requires states to have a child support enforcement program that complies with federal requirements as a condition to receiving federal funds for child support enforcement and Temporary Aid to Needy Families (TANF) programs. Prior to the enactment of the DRA, for a family that received TANF cash benefits, the state and federal government retained any current support and assigned arrearages collected up to the cumulative amount of TANF benefits that have been paid to a family. While the state was authorized to pay its share of collections to the family, it was still required to pay the federal government its share of child support collections. Therefore, any pass-through amount to the family was required to be financed completely from state funds.

The DRA allows states to pass-through child support collections to the family up to $100 per month or $200 per month for a family with two or more children and does not require the state to pay the federal government the federal share of those payments. The state must disregard the child support collection paid to the family in determining the family's cash TANF benefit.

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

Suspension of the Child Support Pass-Through. In 2010, with the passage of SSB 6893, the Legislature directed the Division of Child Support to suspend the child support pass-through.

Summary of Bill: Effective October 1, 2019, the suspension of the child support pass through is struck and the Division of Child Support shall pass-through child support that does not exceed $100 per month collected on behalf of a family, or in the case of a family that includes two or more children, an amount that is not more than $200 per month.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Creates Committee/Commission/Task Force that includes Legislative members: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: This bill reinstates the child support pass-through that was eliminated during the Great Recession, purely for economic reasons. Studies show that child support compliance increases with a pass-through, now there's an incentive to either pay under the table or not at all. A $100 or $200 increase in income makes a significant difference for a family on TANF, it helps to stabilize families. Even more so for survivors of domestic violence who may otherwise have to ask for favors from the person who harmed them, with the added income they can afford to change the locks. A family could pay car insurance, or not have to decide between paying for the heat or buying diapers. This bill is good for families, good for children and good for the economy.
