SENATE COMMITTEE ON HOUSING STABILITY & AFFORDABILITY

Staff: Jeff Olsen (786-7428)

Background: The State Environmental Policy Act (SEPA) establishes a review process for state and local governments to identify environmental impacts resulting from governmental decisions, such as the issuance of permits or the adoption of land use plans. The SEPA environmental review process involves a project proponent or the lead agency completing an environmental checklist to identify and evaluate probable environmental impacts. Government decisions that the SEPA checklist process identifies as having significant adverse environmental impacts must then undergo a more comprehensive environmental analysis in the form of an environmental impact statement (EIS).

Projects which undergo a SEPA review may be required to mitigate significant adverse environmental impacts in order to receive approval from the government entity performing the SEPA analysis. Project proponents may also choose to mitigate environmental impacts identified in the environmental checklist to receive a determination the project does not have significant environmental impacts, and therefore can avoid the process of completing an EIS for the project.

Summary of Bill: Permit actions to site a temporary shelter or transitional encampment are exempt from compliance with SEPA if the facility meets certain criteria. The facility must be used to provide temporary quarters for sleeping and shelter for formerly homeless people, include no more than 200 beds, and be used on the site for no more than three years. A transitional encampment may not involve the erection of a new permanent structure.

Temporary shelters may have common food preparation, shower, or other commonly used facilities. A transitional encampment may have tents or a similar shelter, including vehicles used for shelter providing temporary quarters for sleeping and shelter. The transitional encampment may have common food preparation, shower, or other commonly used facilities separate from the sleeping shelters.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Creates Committee/Commission/Task Force that includes Legislative members: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: With all of the recent cold weather, local jurisdictions need the flexibility to establish transitional and temporary shelters. Having a two to three year window for transitional shelters helps to connect people to services, establish a mailing address, obtain employment, and transition into other housing options. Transitional shelters have supportive environments for the elderly and disabled, and provide a safe and sober environment. It is very important that transitional housing does not have to move frequently. The definition of transitional housing may be too specific and should include modular structures.

OTHER: It is important to have safe housing and to protect the environment. By establishing temporary shelters and moving people out of sensitive areas may result in less damage to the environment.
