SENATE COMMITTEE ON EARLY LEARNING & K-12 EDUCATION

Staff: Benjamin Omdal (786-7442)

Background: College in the High School (CiHS) programs provide college level courses in high schools or high school environments to qualified students who are in or are eligible for enrollment in grades 10, 11, and 12.

Students who participate in a CiHS program are able to earn both high school and postsecondary credit by completing postsecondary level courses with a passing grade. Programs are established in individual agreements between the schools and colleges or universities. The institution of higher education participating in a CiHS program may charge tuition fees per credit to participating students.

State statute permits school district to offer CiHS programs, while state rule permits charter schools and state tribal compact schools to offer CiHS programs.

State funding for CiHS programs does not include funding for students who are in or eligible for enrollment in grade 10. For students in grades 11 or 12, funding is prioritized according to statute, with subsidies for eligible students. The maximum per credit fee may not exceed the amount of the per credit subsidy.

Summary of Bill: Ninth grade students are eligible to participate in CiHS programs. A high school that offers a CiHS program must provide general information about the program to all students in grades eight through 12 and to the parents and guardians of those students.

A high school that offers a CiHS program must include the following information about program courses in the high school catalogue or equivalent:

- there is no fee for students to enroll in a program course to earn only high school credit and fees apply for students who choose to enroll in a course to earn both high school and college credit;
- a description and breakdown of the fees charged to students to earn college credit; and
- a notification that paying for college credit automatically starts an official college transcript with the institution of higher education offering the course regardless of student performance, and college credit earned upon successful completion of a course may count only as elective credit if transferred to another institution of higher education.

Charter schools and state-tribal compact schools are allowed to offer CiHS programs, to the same extent as school districts.

The maximum per college credit tuition fee an institution of higher education may charge for a CiHS course is set at $65, to be annually adjusted for inflation. The Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction must calculate and post the maximum fee on its website, by July 1st annually. Language specifying that the minimum CiHS program allocation and subsidy is $65 per quarter credit and that specified entities must review funding levels for the program every 4 years and recommend changes is removed.

Cross-references are corrected and other terminology changes are made.
