Background:

Sexual Assault Forensic Examination Best Practices Advisory Group.

A person who has been the victim of a sexual assault may undergo a forensic examination for the purpose of collecting evidence left behind during the assault. The doctor or nurse conducting the examination preserves the evidence using a sexual assault kit (SAK). In some cases, testing conducted on a SAK may result in a DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) profile of a potential suspect. The profile is uploaded into the Combined DNA Indexing System (CODIS) where it may match profiles collected from other investigations or from arrested or convicted persons. A match, or "CODIS hit," may function as an investigative lead for the assault.

In 2019 the state established the Sexual Assault Forensic Examination Best Practices Advisory Group (SAFE Advisory Group) within the Attorney General's Office and directed the SAFE Advisory Group to reduce the number of untested SAKs and review best practice models for managing all aspects of sexual assault investigations. The SAFE Advisory Group expired on December 31, 2021.

Uniform Health Care Information Act.

The state Uniform Health Care Information Act (UHCIA) governs the disclosure of health care information by health care providers and their agents or employees. The UHCIA provides that a health care provider may not disclose health care information about a patient unless there is a statutory exception or written authorization by the patient. To be valid, a disclosure authorization to a health care provider or health care facility must:

- be in writing, dated, and signed by the patient;
- identify the nature of the information to be disclosed;
- identify the name and institutional affiliation of the person to whom the information will be disclosed;
- identify the provider making the disclosure;
- identify the patient; and
- contain an expiration date or an expiration event that relates to the patient or the purpose of the disclosure.

Statute of Limitations for Sex Offenses.

A statute of limitations provides an authorized period of time for initiating a prosecution after a crime is committed. Once the applicable statute of limitations has expired, a prosecutor is barred from bringing charges against the alleged perpetrator. Statutes of limitations vary depending on the crime.

In a prosecution for a sex offense, the applicable statute of limitation runs from whichever of the following dates is later:

- the date the crime was committed; or
- two years from the date the identity of the suspect is conclusively established by DNA testing or by photograph.

Criminal Justice Training Commission.

The Criminal Justice Training Commission (CJTC) provides basic law enforcement training for new recruits prior to certification as well as advanced training and educational programming for officers, including the following:

- training for officers who do not regularly investigate sexual assault cases on a victim-centered, trauma-informed approach to interacting with sexual assault victims; and
- specialized training for officers who are responsible for investigating sexual assault cases involving adult victims, which applicable officers must complete within one year of being assigned.

The CJTC must conduct an annual, ongoing case review program to review case files from select law enforcement agencies and prosecuting attorneys in order to identify changes to training and investigatory practices necessary to optimize outcomes in sexual assault investigations and prosecutions involving adult victims. If a law enforcement agency has not participated in the CJTC's specialized training for officers who are responsible for investigating sexual assault cases involving adult victims by July 1, 2022, the CJTC may prioritize the agency for selection to participate in the case review program.

Summary of Second Substitute Bill:

Sexual Assault Forensic Examination Best Practices Advisory Group.

The Sexual Assault Forensic Examination Best Practices Advisory Group (SAFE Advisory Group) is reestablished in the Attorney General's Office. The membership is expanded by an additional six persons with certain specified roles or expertise. The duties of the SAFE Advisory Group are modified, including by removing issues relating to the testing and storage of untested or unreported SAKs. The SAFE Advisory Group must research and make recommendations on opportunities to increase access to and availability of critical sexual assault nurse examiner services, and to continue monitoring the testing of SAKs and the supply chain and distribution of SAKs. The SAFE Advisory Group expires on July 1, 2026.

Uniform Health Care Information Act.

A disclosure authorization to a health care provider or health care facility authorizing disclosure of information to law enforcement regarding a forensic examination performed for the purposes of gathering evidence for possible prosecution of a criminal offense is valid until the end of all related criminal proceedings or a later event selected by the provider, facility, patient, or patient's representative, unless the patient or patient's representative requests a different expiration date or event.

Statute of Limitations for Sex Offenses.

The authorized period for commencing the prosecution of certain sex offenses is expanded. In a prosecution for a sex offense, the applicable statute of limitations runs from whichever of the following dates is later:

- the date the crime was committed; or
- four years from the date the identity of the suspect is conclusively established by DNA testing or by photograph.

Criminal Justice Training Commission.

The Criminal Justice Training Commission's (CJTC) trauma-informed training for officers who do not regularly investigate sexual assault cases is expanded to include training on all gender-based violence. All peace officers must complete the trauma-informed training every three years. The CJTC's specialized training for officers investigating sexual assault cases involving adult victims is expanded to include training for investigators of gender-based violence cases, commanding officers overseeing investigations of sexual assault and gender-based violence, and prosecutors responsible for prosecuting sexual assault cases involving adult victims. The CJTC's case review program is modified to specify that:

- the CJTC may prioritize case reviews for agencies that did not participate in required specialized training in the previous two years; and
- the program must include a comparison of cases involving prosecutors who have participated in the CJTC's specialized training to cases involving prosecutors who have not participated in such training.

The CJTC must, subject to appropriation, administer a grant program for establishing a statewide resource prosecutor for sexual assault cases. The grant recipient must be a statewide organization or association representing prosecuting attorneys. The grant recipient must hire a resource prosecutor for specified purposes. The CJTC may, in consultation with the SAFE Advisory Group, establish additional conditions for any grant awarded. The CJTC and statewide resource prosecutor must, subject to appropriation, partner to develop and conduct specialized, intensive, and integrative training meeting specified criteria for persons responsible for prosecuting sexual assault cases involving adult victims.

EFFECT OF SENATE AMENDMENT(S):

The amended bill: (1) requires biological samples to be collected from a juvenile adjudicated of an offense which would be a felony if committed by an adult; (2) requires jail and prison facilities to collect biological samples before a convicted person required to provide such samples is released from confinement, and establishes procedures to collect the samples if they are not collected before the person's release; (3) requires a convicted person who must provide biological samples, and who will not serve a term of confinement, to be administratively booked at a city or county jail to provide the samples; (4) requires sentencing courts to create and implement a biological sample collection protocol; (5) provides that evidence of a victim's social media account depicting past sexual behavior is inadmissible in a prosecution for a sex offense for the purpose of proving the victim's consent or attacking the credibility of the victim, subject to certain exceptions; (6) expands the statutory rights of crime victims, survivors, and witnesses to apply to any adult or juvenile criminal proceeding, and any sexually violent predator commitment proceeding; and (7) provides that if a victim, survivor of a victim, or witness of a crime is denied a statutory right, that person may seek a court order directing compliance by the relevant party.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Effective Date: The bill contains multiple effective dates. Please see the bill. However, the bill is null and void unless funded in the budget.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony (Community Safety, Justice, & Reentry):

(In support) Survivors of sexual assault who engage with the criminal justice system do so with the belief that someone will listen and act. Accountability is equally as important as the survivor's experience with the criminal justice system. Only a fraction of survivors make reports, but that should not be because they think they will be unsupported or ignored. Many survivors are from marginalized communities and lack resources, which is why they are targeted. Those survivors face profound barriers to justice.

Of the sexual assault kits (SAK) that have been tested and entered into the Combined DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) Indexing System (CODIS), 35 to 40 percent will generate a CODIS hit. Over 98 percent are tested within the statutory time limit. However, less than 1 percent of sexual assaults result in felony charges. This bill provides tools to investigate and prosecute these sexual assault cases. There may be language proposed to prohibit at-home SAKs. This bill also contains language requiring an investigation to be conducted within 90 days, but many cases take longer than that. One suggestion is to require investigations to initiate or begin within 90 days instead.

Victims' rights are vital protections that may be overlooked because of expediency or other reasons. Currently there are no protections for victims' rights in judicial proceedings. Without these rights, victims have no recourse. This bill establishes the right to seek strict compliance. However, it may be impossible to provide remedies in certain instances, such as when a victim misses a chance to appear at a sentencing hearing. If the victim asked for strict compliance, that might force resentencing.

Case reviews have affirmed the effectiveness of training for officers. Lack of such training may limit the ability to respond in a way that mitigates harm and holds offenders accountable. This bill requires officers to receive specific training in gender-based violence, which is a critical expansion. This bill also provides grant funds for a sexual assault resource prosecutor, which is a model that has been used across the country. Partnering the resource prosecutor with the Criminal Justice Training Commission is an effective way to manage the new enhanced training for prosecutors. However, the scope of the case review for such training should be specified more clearly in the bill.

It is very difficult to stabilize someone and provide therapeutic services in 72 hours. Most of the youth served at receiving centers are heavily addicted and have to come out of withdrawals. This bill provides 30 days to allow receiving centers to provide services, coordinate care, and develop a discharge plan.

(Opposed) None.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony (Appropriations):

(In support) The funding requested in the bill is critical and will benefit the receiving centers for sexually exploited youth. This is a very unique program with a specific population of youth that have been through unimaginable trauma and that are in need of more robust medical staff.

It is also recommended that funding is provided to: (1) expand the CJTC training content to include other forms of gender-based violence; and (2) mandate participation in the trauma-informed training for patrol officers and investigation commanders. Much of the money requested in the bill pertains to the development, management, and delivery of trauma-informed interviewing practices to prosecutors that mirror training provided for officers. Some of the funds will also support the expansion of the case review processes. To date, with its multidisciplinary team of experts, the CJTC has trained over 700 detectives and officers to conduct beneficial trauma-informed interviewing of victims. This bill will help close the gap of officers and prosecutors that have not been mutually trained about the impacts of trauma.

(Opposed) None.
