Background:

Business and Occupation Tax.

Washington's major business tax is the business and occupation (B&O) tax. The B&O tax is imposed on the gross receipts of business activities conducted within the state, without any deduction for the costs of doing business. Businesses must pay the B&O tax even though they may not have any profits or may be operating at a loss.

A taxpayer may have more than one B&O tax rate, depending on the types of activities conducted. Major B&O tax rates are 0.471 percent for retailing; 0.484 percent for manufacturing, wholesaling, and extracting; and 1.5 percent or 1.75 percent for services and for activities not classified elsewhere, depending on the size of the business. Several preferential rates also apply to specific business activities.

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

In addition, a taxpayer may be eligible to utilize other tax preferences, including credits and deductions, to reduce their tax liability. For example, a taxpayer engaging in activities subject to different B&O tax rates may be eligible for a Multiple Activities Tax Credit.

Medicaid Incentive Payments.

In 2015 the United States Congress enacted the Medicare Access and Children's Health Insurance Program Reauthorization Act (MACRA). Part of the MACRA restructures how certain health services are paid for through Medicaid.

An Accountable Community of Health (ACH) is a regional coalition of representatives from a variety of sectors, working together to improve health and health equity. Participants may include health and long-term care providers, health insurance companies, public health agencies, school districts, and criminal justice agencies.

Washington's nine ACHs were organized to implement the MACRA goals related to Medicaid. They have entered into an agreement with the federal government allowing the state to test new and innovative approaches to providing health coverage and care. The ACHs are funded partly with grants from the Washington State Health Care Authority, using money from the State Innovation Model grant issued by the Federal Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation.

In 2018 a B&O tax exemption was enacted for Medicaid demonstration project funds and delivery system reform incentive payments received after March 15, 2018, by an ACH or a public hospital from federal, state, or local government. In 2019 the B&O tax deductions are extended to include incentive payments received through a Medicaid quality improvement program. In addition, a B&O deduction is authorized for incentive payments received for achieving quality performance standards by managed care organizations.

The tax preference is not subject to the tax preference performance statement requirements, a Joint Legislative Audit and Review Committee review or the 10-year expiration.

Summary of Bill:

The B&O deduction for Medicaid delivery system reform incentive payments to ACHs and public hospitals is updated to reflect the most recent payment name: Medicaid transformation project funding. There is also a provision to capture the payments under subsequent project iterations.
