Early course registration allows students to register for classes prior to the standard open registration date. At public institutions of higher education, student course registration order is usually based on the number of credits a student has been awarded by the attending institution, sometimes referred to as "class standing." Priority registration varies depending on each institution's policy, and some institutions do not offer priority registration.

In 2013 the Legislature passed House Bill 1109, which required institutions of higher education that offered early course registration to have a process in place to allow students who were eligible veterans or National Guard members early course registration. In 2015 the policy was expanded to include spouses receiving eligible veteran education benefits. The policy expired on August 1, 2022.

Summary of Bill:

Beginning in the 2024-25 academic year, public institutions of higher education that offer an early course registration period for any segment of the student population must have a process in place to allow students who are eligible veterans, National Guard members, active duty military, and their spouses, domestic partners, and dependents early course registration. Eligible students who are:

- new students who have completed all of their admission processes must be offered an early course registration period; and
- continuing and returning former students who have met current enrollment requirements must be offered early course registration among continuing students with the same level of class standing or credit as determined by the attending institutions and according to institutional policies.

An eligible veteran or National Guard member is defined as an individual residing in Washington who was an active or reserve member of the United States military or naval forces, or a National Guard member called to active duty, who served in active federal service, or in a war or conflict fought on foreign soil or in international waters or in support of those serving on foreign soil or in international waters, and if discharged from service, has received an honorable discharge or any other discharge if the sole reason for discharge is due to gender or sexuality.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony:

(In support) The original policy for this bill expired in August, 2022, and after it expired, it was recognized that the legislation had merit and did good work for men and women in the military. This policy should be continued because it is a benefit for those who have served and sacrificed for their country. This country has not always rolled out the red carpet for service members, but this has changed in recent years. Veterans and service members are being considered first, and legislatures are working at the state level and federally to make sure veterans are treated with the dignity and respect they deserve. Early registration would help accomplish this. Military orders can make a person leave right at the prime time for registering for classes. If the person leaves, they might not return in time to register. This bill addresses that and also helps veterans who return from active duty. After the original policy expired, the public four-year institutions have continued to offer this benefit for veterans, and the institutions support the reauthorization and expansion of the original policy. Early registration is essential for securing financial aid. Around 1,620 students at Washington State University would qualify for early registration under this bill. The expansion of the policy to include dependents is something students are very thankful for. This policy also supports disabled veterans as it allows them to register early and have extra time to request accommodations. Allowing military students to register early is the least the Legislature can do to alleviate some stress for military folks.

(Opposed) None.
