SENATE COMMITTEE ON LAW & JUSTICE

Staff: Joe McKittrick (786-7287)

Background: Law Enforcement. A general authority peace officer is an individual commissioned to enforce the criminal laws of the state of Washington. A limited authority peace officer is an individual empowered by his or her employing agency to detect or apprehend violators of the law in some or all the limited subject areas for which the officer's employing agency is responsible.

All general authority peace officers must be certified by the Criminal Justice Training Commission as a condition of employment. The certification process includes a background check that verifies the peace officer is either a citizen of the United States or a lawful permanent resident.

Prosecuting Attorneys. To be qualified as a county prosecuting attorney, a person must be a qualified elector in the county in which he or she is running and an attorney licensed to practice in Washington. Prosecuting attorneys may appoint one or more deputies who have the same powers as the principal prosecuting attorney. Each deputy prosecutor must have the same qualifications as the principle prosecuting attorney, except deputies do not need to reside in the county in which the deputy serves.

Lawful Permanent Residents. Under federal law, a lawful permanent resident is a person who is legally authorized to reside permanently in the United States. Lawful permanent residents have many of the same rights as United States citizens, including the ability to accept employment, own property, and join the United States armed forces.

Summary of Bill: General authority and limited authority law enforcement agencies may consider the applications of United States citizens or lawful permanent residents for any office, place, position, or employment within the agency. Deputy prosecuting attorneys are not required to be qualified electors in the county in which the deputy prosecutor serves, however deputy prosecutors must be either a United States citizen or a lawful permanent resident.

Appropriation: None.
