SENATE COMMITTEE ON EARLY LEARNING & K-12 EDUCATION

Staff: Alex Fairfortune (786-7416)

Background: School Curriculum in Washington State. Common schools in Washington are subject to curriculum requirements set by state law. These requirements include that all common schools provide instruction in, among other things, reading, arithmetic, and the history of the United States. The Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI) may prescribe other required curriculum areas by rule. State law also prescribes various areas in which school districts must offer instruction or are encouraged to do so. Examples of these areas include instruction in cardiopulmonary resuscitation, sex trafficking awareness and prevention, and the Holocaust.

Pledge of Allegiance in Schools. The board of directors of every school district must cause appropriate flag exercises to be held in each classroom at the beginning of the school day and at the opening of all school assemblies. Those students who wish to do so may recite the Pledge of Allegiance. Those students who choose not to recite the Pledge must maintain a respectful silence.

Summary of Bill: Beginning no later than the 2025-26 school year, school districts must offer instruction in the meaning and history of the Pledge of Allegiance. At a minimum, the instruction must be offered once in elementary school, once in middle school, and once in high school.

To the extent practicable, OSPI must make curricular resources related to the meaning and history of the Pledge of Allegiance available in the library of openly licensed courseware.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Requested on January 18, 2024.

Creates Committee/Commission/Task Force that includes Legislative members: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: At Eatonville Middle School a class of students were asked to write the Pledge of Allegiance and write about its meaning. Many of the students couldn't spell some of the words, or they weren't familiar with the meaning. The class did a large project where they studied the meaning, history, and law around the Pledge. They then taught this information to their peers. The students decided that the law needed to be changed so that all students know the meaning behind the Pledge they recite every day. The Pledge is a statement of value and a reminder of the principles that unite us.
